EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

TILDEN, the Democratic sage, endorsed Democracy, but had not a word to say in favor of Cleveland.

THERE is hope for the Republicans in Florida. The Cleveland men do not figure above three thousand majority for their ticket.

THE way to make the Democratic party strong is for Democratic voters to stand united.—Watchman. A better and more effective way would be for them to eat onions.

CLEVELAND's favorite phrase is "let me point the way" and it is a very happy one. He has been pointing the way so long that his party has dug a post hole and stuck him in for a sign post.

It looks as if Mr. Wm. M. Allison will be compelled to purchase a ticket for Harrisburg some of these days as the people of the county will delegate him to represent them in the legislature.

ANOTHER $12,000,000 reduction of the National debt is the unanswerable argument in favor of keeping the Republican party in power given the people by the Treasury Department a few days ago. Keep it up.

DR. C. P. W. FISHER is a gentle man of fine talents and upright character. Recent attacks of illness rendered him unable to continue his practice, and he is a candidate for Associate Judge. Vote for him.

"SHALL the Democracy be dissolved?" asks the N. Y. Sun. Well, yes; but please take it out into the Pacific ocean while this process of dissolution is taking place. The odor will be offensive to those who live far inland.

MR. H. G. ELDER is making an active, earnest, deserving fight for the office of prothonotary. His opponent, Mr. Brett, is fit for the position neither physically nor morally, and our friend, Mr. Elder, should be elected.

THE name of Foster in Centre county is the synonym of all that is honest and virtuous. Mr. William L. Foster is one of the very best representatives of that name, and he asks his fellow-citizens to vote for him for register on the 4th of November.

CARL SCHURZ refused to address a Democratic meeting in Ohio until he was paid $150 in cash. He was offered a check, but declined it—therein showing the extent of his faith in Democracy—he wouldn't trust it even for a barrel of wind. The great statesman for revenge only doesn't appear to be getting left this year.

The Democratic Party.

The record of the Democratic party is a record of treason, infamy and shame. We give a few facts from its record:

It is the party which enacted the fugitive slave law of 1850.

It made the most determined efforts to carry slavery into free territory.

It opposed the passage of the Homestead Act.

It robbed our Government of its arms and munitions of war and stored them in the armories and arsenals of the South.

It stole our ships and scattered our navy into foreign seas.

It almost destroyed the National credit.

It hurled our country into a great civil war.

It murdered, in cold blood, men, women and children, who loved their country and who remained true to its flag.

It opposed a vigorous prosecution of the war for the Union, and demanded a cessation of hostilities.

It resisted the draft with all its power.

It discouraged enlistment for the Union Army while it encouraged desertion from its ranks.

It burned down colored orphan's asylums.

It perpetrated the shocking cruelties of Andersonville, Salisbury Libby, and Belle Isle.

It shed every drop of blood that flowed at the massacre of Fort Pillow.

It denounced Abraham Lincoln as a tyrant and a usurper.

It denounced Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Meade, and Thomas as butchers for leading our armies successfully against the armed hosts of treason.

It denounced Union soldiers as 'Lincoln's hirelings' and 'lawless cut-throats.'

It opposed the right of the Union soldiers to vote in the land they saved and made free.

It saddled an enormous debt of many millions upon the people of this country.

It has favored the pensioning of ex-rebel soldiers and putting them on equal footing with Union soldiers.

It voted to pension Jeff Davis, although to this day he boasts of his treason to the country.

It will rob the National treasury to pay the slave-owners of the South for the emancipated slaves, should it ever get into power.

It removed fifty crippled Union soldiers who were employees in the Lower House of Congress, and substituted forty-seven ex-Confederate soldiers in their stead.

It has introduced the "shot-gun policy" into Southern politics.

It opposed the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments and the enactment of all laws providing for the enforcement of these provisions of our fundamental law.

It has repeatedly disturbed the business of the country by imprudently tinkering with the tariff.

It is the author of the Morrison tariff bill, and made a most desperate effort to force it through Congress.

It opposed the policy of Protection to American industry.

It is the champion of free trade, which would eventually lower the workingmen of this country to the condition of the pauper laborers of England.

It has given aid and comfort to the practice of polygamy in Utah and the adjoining territories.

It undertook to defeat the express will of the people of 1876, through bribery and cipher dispatches.

It maliciously attempted to ruin the Christian statesman, James A. Garfield, by charging him with having improperly accepted $329.

It forged the infamous Morey letter in 1880 and tried to deceive the people into the belief that it was genuine.

It has for years been engaged in a mad effort to break down the character of the great popular leader, James G. Blaine, by the employment of foul and vile calumny, slander abuse and billingsgate.

It robbed the taxpayers of Pennsylvania of over a quarter million of dollars in the uselessly prolonged extra session of 1883.

It is the tool of that dangerous monopoly "The Standard Oil Company," which bribed the Ohio Legislature to defeat the "Free Pipe Line Bill."

It offers an insult to every pure woman in our land by favoring the elevation of a man to the Presidency who is admitted to be an adulterer.

It insults fathers and mothers of America by supporting a man for chief magistrate of the Republic, who would rob their daughters of their virtue if he could.

It offers a premium for licentiousness by nominating a man for President of the United States whom his own political associates recognize as a libertine.

It insults the memory of Abraham Lincoln by nominating for Vice-President the man who publicly denounced Lincoln as "a smutty old tyrant."

It cannot point to a single act it has performed or even honestly urged in the interests of good government during the last thirty years.

It has the most disgraceful and blackest record of all the political organizations which have ever existed among men.

There is not another civilized country on this planet that would allow a party with such a record to exist. In the early days of the Republic, an organization with such tendencies would not even have had a respectable following, and the idea of entrusting the leaders of such an organization with the management of the government, would not for one single moment have been seriously entertained.

A Competent Witness.

Sir John A. McDonald, premier of Canada, says in an interview that Canadians are watching the political campaign in this country with great interest. They have found a protective tariff so profitable themselves that they are surprised that free trade should even be mentioned in the United States. Five years ago, he says, before the tariff was adopted, Canada's young men were leaving for the States. Now there is employment for all at home.

Sir John McDonald, the foremost statesman of a country contiguous to ours, a country young like our own, with its industries in a corresponding stage of development, is a much more competent witness to the effect of a protective tariff than the interested English authorities, from whom the free trade Democratic organs draw their thunder. England is a great country, with many noble institutions which are worthy of imitation. We have copied from her in many respects, to our profit, but in our widely-differing industrial condition, with our vast vacant territory and boundless raw resources, we have no more place in our revenue policy for her free trade system than the Goddess of Liberty has for Her Majesty's crown jewels.

It should not be necessary, as indeed it is not, to rest the defense of the American protective policy on alien evidence, but when the country is deluged with free trade arguments "imported under contract" it is entirely fair to accept testimony from just over the border.—Pittsburg Times.

It don't make any difference who the Democrats may nominate for Judge, as there is already one candidate for whom every voter in the district can cast his ballot. A. O. Furst, Esq., the Republican nominee, is upright, conscientious and firm, and will perhaps make a better Judge than any other person who could be selected in the district.

THE attempt to explain away the charge that Mrs. Lockwood indulges in great quantities of ice cream by claiming that her vanilla and water-ice indiscretions were confined to the period of her youth will not be successful. Pleading the statute of limitation is not at all popular with voters.

The Democratic Revolt.

A great many Democrats of Centre county who realize that they are men, and who have been repeatedly victimized by the machine politics manipulated by the Bellefonte Ring, feel disposed to evidence their independence in the coming election and vote for a change in the county and rebuke the county machine.

The editor of the Watchman is very eager to whip all Democrats into the unanimous support of the ticket, and says no good Democrat will bolt or fail to support the whole county ticket. But we learn that he is met by many Democrats with a little bit of political history of his own. When trying to persuade Democrats who think they know enough to vote without being told by him, he is met with the inquiry, How does it come, Mr. Meek, you bolted the Congressional ticket in 1874, and also bolted the Congressional ticket in 1878, and aided the defeat of our honorable statesman, A. G. Curtin? If you think you have a right to bolt any part of the ticket when it don't suit you, why have we not the same right to refuse to support part of the ticket when it don't suit us? We think the Democrats who don't regard some of their nominations as proper and have made up their minds to vote for some of the Republicans, have had a very good example shown them by their present county chairman.

And the Republicans, having put in nomination an able and worthy ticket, all good citizens can afford to vote for it, and do credit to themselves and the county by electing at least a part of it.

WHEN the citizens of Centre county come to the polls on election day to vote for commissioner let them remember that Henry C. Campbell is a member of the present board and that through his instrumentality the debt of the county has been reduced from $60,000 to about $25,000. Let them remember that previous boards of commissioners failed to attempt any such commendable measure, but that Mr. Campbell was elected on the reform issue and has admirably fulfilled the trust committed to him. While we would not say that no other man could have done equally well, it is important to remember that the present board have performed a work of retrenchment and reform attempted by no previous board, and deserves the gratitude and acknowledgment of the people. Surely, then, every Republican can consistently vote for Mr. Campbell. The other Republican candidate for Commissioner, Mr. J. C. Henderson, is a gentleman who, if elected, will continue the good work already begun. His Republicanism and ability are unquestioned. It is quite probable that both of these gentlemen will be elected.

THE search for some man eminent for learning and purity of character to endorse Mr. Cleveland's candidacy will have to be abandoned. It was hoped that Dr. McCosh, of Princeton College, could be persuaded to fill the void, but a letter to the New York Sun affirms that the writer knows of his own knowledge that Dr. McCosh is opposed to Mr. Cleveland's election. This strengthens the list already made illustrious by such names as ex-President Woolsey, of Yale College; ex-President Mark Hopkins, of Williams College; President Anderson, of Rochester University; President Cheney, of Bates College, and many others.

DAVID A. WELLS has taken the stump for Cleveland in the New England states. He advocates Cleveland and Free Trade. After his address, it is said he passes around a Free-trade primer which the audience are expected to take home and study at their leisure, yet the New York World is trying to make the American workman believe the Democratic party and Cleveland are not in favor of Free Trade.

The English Fear the Election of Blaine.

Mr. M. H. DeYoung, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, who has been recently on a visit to London, writes as follows: "I was talking with George Jones of the New York Times, when I was in London, and he says that the Democrats made a great mistake in nominating so obscure a man as Cleveland. At first he had quite a boom in the East, but he has been steadily running down, until now his election has become one of the very remote possibilities. In London, of course, the politicians are all for Cleveland, not because he is Cleveland, but because they don't want Blaine. In the club—I mean those clubs which are political in their nature such as the Carlton, the Reform and the Cobden Clubs—the talk is very heated on the coming American election, and they are all for Cleveland, since they fear the election of Blaine. It is thought in England that the election of Blaine would be a severe blow to England's interest on the continent of America. His support of the Monroe doctrine and his expressions about the Clayton-Bulwer treaty were not relished in England."

THE N. Y. Sun says that the only hope for the Democratic party in this campaign is in the defeat of Cleveland. If Cleveland should be elected the Democratic party will red itself to pieces in the effort to settle the tariff question, the party being divided on the question with Cleveland favoring the minority or free trade wing. Whether the N. Y. Sun's supposition that free traders among the Democrats are really in the minority or not is a debatable question; we believe that they constitute a majority. But the Sun is a wise journal and the party should heed its advice.

THE Altoona Times intimates that because several laborers have recently been discharged by the Cambria Iron Company, therefore the Republican party fails to protect labor. The Times and every laboring man in the country can attribute any present scarcity of labor and low wages directly to the attempted 20 per cent. tariff reduction of the Democratic House. That paralyzed labor, and it is but awaiting the restoration of a majority of congressmen coupled with the election of the great Protection leader, James G. Blaine.

CLEVELAND's talk about being too busy with the duties of his office to go to Ohio is the utterance of a hypocrite. He wasn't too busy in the summer to go on a month's fishing trip. The truth is his managers are afraid to have him go before the public. His strength as a candidate lies in the fact that he is a stranger to the people.

THERE was a volume in General Grant's remark to Mr. Blaine in New York on the 3d—"The Democracy are abusing you as they have abused me, but they will elect you nevertheless. For my own part I do not know of any time when Republican success was more essential to national prosperity than at present."

CARL SCHURZ began to discover what a bad man Blaine was when Blaine, as secretary of State, refused him certain official favors. Had Secretary Blaine applied the salve of patronage where it would do the most good, Carl Schurz would today be spraining his throat in telling the truth about Cleveland.

CARLINE was renominated in his Kentucky district. He will go back to the House with the one aim and purpose of pushing through another Morrison bill, provided he does not find a Republican majority which will lift him out of the Speaker's chair.

It becomes clearer every day Mr. Tilden has not heard the name of the Democratic candidate for president.

THE OTHER SIDE.

JERRY TAYLOR'S DREAM, AS TOLD BY HIMSELF.

BY JUDIA A. WILLARD.

Yes, the world was wrong a deup!
Turned e'er no more than half way—
Got fast on the centre,
No help could be lent her;
We were all on our heads that day.

While I was at home with the babe,
My Lucy was up at Tom Bragg's,
A-drinking her dimes and nickels,
His nuckle made from her mickles,
His raiment spun out of my rage.

And my cheeks were pallid and thin,
And my tears were flowing in rivers;
At Lucy's returning
No fire would be burning,
No fuel and the baby in shiver.

And nothing to put on the table,
And breakfast had been but a crust;
How I dreaded her coming,
And her blows a'unsparing;
But I'd vowed to submit, and I must.

If a man weds a lassie that tipples,
Into her blood danger he'll reap.
Take care, for example—
My fate is a sample
Of trouble he better might shun.

I waited, and worried, and trembled,
And tried just a bit for to pray;
Yet the world wouldn't turn on its pivot,
And Lucy'd be "right as a trivet."
Oh! 'twas I and the baby that day!
Good fathers! it made me grow gray.

And the little one cried for its fodder,
And set up a piteous weep;
Poor lamb! 'twas the heart of me aching,
To hear the add it was making,
And never a wink would it sleep.

For me to sit quiet and moaning—
Sure the world must be upside down!
'Twas a sort of "reform agitator,"
When I was the lone, weary wailer
At home, and she sneering in town.

Oh! I thought of my happy young days,
When the world looked as fair as a rose;
Did I dream that my lassie,
So comely and saucy,
Would burden my bosom with woes?

How she promised to honor and love,
And I mind that she added, "obey;"
And I said, with a flourish,
I'd protect her and cherish,
For the world was a-rolling, that day.

O! hark! 'tis her foot on the stairs!
It rouses my terror and dread,
But I'll rally for baby's dear sake,
"Oh! Lucy, have pity!"—I wake,
And am here with my boots on in bed!

Who gave this old planet a start,
And set us again on our feet?
"Why, Jerry, what a terrible scream!"
"Oh! Lucy, such a horrible dream!"
Don't tremble, but look at me, sweet.

You see, I am sober as death!
No wonder you look with surprise;
Is my sleep I've been living my life,
And I never would be my own wife!
'Tis myself I can see with new eyes.

Come, Lucy, be wedded again;
I've ridden Tom Bragg a good-bye.
The "honor," the "love," the "obey,"
We'll never make the domineer say—
Not you alone, Lucy, but I.

—Church and Home.

JUST ONE LITTLE SONG, LOVE.

Then sing the song we loved, love,
While all life seemed one song;
For life is not too long, love;
Ah, love is none too long.

And when above my grave, love,
Some day the grass grows strong,
Then sing that song we loved, love;
Love, just that one sweet song.

So when they bid you sing, love,
And thrill the joyous throng,
Then sing the song we loved, love;
Love, just that one sweet song.

Our Story Teller.

Mother's Trial.

BY SHIRLEY BROWNE.

"How it snows!" said Cecile Fontaine.

She lifted up the heavy, rose-colored curtains and peeped out to where the driving gusts of snow made a ghost-like glimmer athwart the gathering dusk. And then she dropped the lustrous folds, and turned once more to the bright little boudoir where the fire glowed redly and the chandelier, hung with glittering glass prisms, diffused a softer light than daylight's self.

The room was octagonal, hung with folds of fluted silk of that pale pink which is almost white, and frescoed overhead with the same delicate color. The carpet was white velvet, with sprigs of silver green moss strewn here and there upon its pattern, and sofas and chairs of pink and silver were scattered carelessly around, while on an ornate stand in the centre of the apartment a bouquet of hot-house flowers freighted the air with tropical perfume.

Cecile Fontaine, herself, harmonized admirably with this exquisite scene, as she lay back on a sofa, carelessly turning the page of a volume. Slight and small, with great, luminous blue eyes, hair like flowery gold, and a skin where the delicate wood seemed to glow through, she was dressed in a white cashmere wrapper, falling without a belt, from throat to feet, and edged around with swan's down. Cecile was an adored wife, a spoiled beauty—an heiress whose wish had been law through life! Was it any wonder that her nature had become changed and warped?

"Has Mrs. Walker come yet?" she asked in a rather fretful tone, of the maid, who had entered to put fresh coal on the grate.

"No, ma'am."

"It's very strange," said Cecile, tossing aside her book jerking petulantly at the rings upon her taper little fingers. "She knows the blue dress does not suit me yet, and she knows I have made up my mind to wear the blue silk dress to-night. I told her to be here at 5 o'clock without fail."

"Here she is now, ma'am," said the maid, as she opened the door to admit a tall, pale woman, in a rusty morning dress, and a worn, black shawl.

"Oh, it's you at last, Mrs. Walker," said Cecile, in an injured voice. "I thought you never were coming! Suppose I had been obliged to stop home from the party to-night!"

Mrs. Fontaine spoke as if the crash of empire and the wreck of worlds would be nothing to such a catastrophe.

"I am sorry I am late ma'am," said Mrs. Walker, humbly; "but—" "There's plenty of time, if you will go directly to work!" interrupted Mrs. Fontaine. "Stephanie, bring the blue silk dress from my wardrobe, immediately!"

"I—I am afraid I cannot stay to-night, Mrs. Fontaine," said Mrs. Walker, hurriedly; "my little girl is very sick, and—"

"Not stay to-night! But you must stay!"

"Indeed, madam, she is very ill, and I only came to excuse myself."

Cecile's brow contracted; she bit her lip.

"Very well, Mrs. Walker. If you choose to leave me in this unaccommodating and unkind manner, you have done your last stitch of work for me. Neither will I pay you a cent for the blue silk dress, which does not suit me."

"Mrs. Walker grew pale. She had based many calculations on the price of the elaborately-made blue silk dress, and she was penniless."

"Mrs. Fontaine!"

But Cecile had taken up her book and was again turning over its pages, with a face as coldly beautiful as carved marble, and about as impassive.

"Not one cent will I pay you, Mrs. Walker, unless you sit down at once and alter the dress as I wish!"

Alas! who is so helpless as the poor before the rich? Mrs. Walker felt the iron chains of her captivity tightening around her heart, as cold and relentless as ice! She sat down with a flutter of her thin hands, a quiver of the pale lips! Cecile saw she had triumphed!

"Bring the dress, Stephanie!"

Stephanie obeyed, and Cecile, plunging at once into the mysteries of trimmings, folds and gorges, forgot all about her own eagerness.

"I dare say your little girl will do very well," said Cecile, when at last the clock struck ten and she was dressed. The blue silk hung at last completed to her entire satisfaction.

"People are always unnecessarily frightened about such things! There—don't you see what an improvement those bias folds are, and what a perfect match the satin is? Really, you have a great taste, Mrs. Walker, I will say that for you! And, by the way, I'll tell the housekeeper to get out a bottle of Mr. Fontaine's old port wine—it will be good for your child; wine is so strengthening."

"Thank you, madam," said the dressmaker. But after the wine was brought she still lingered.

"I am not aware that I shall have any further occasion for your services, Mrs. Walker," said Cecile, at length. "Were you waiting for anything?"

"The—the money, madam."

"Oh! the money," said Cecile, with a merry musical laugh. "I declare, I had entirely forgotten the money. Let me see—how much is it? ten—thirteen dollars—eh! there it is."

So the poor seamstress crept away through the whirling drifts of snow, with the bottle of wine under one arm, and the worn leather purse clasped in the other hand.

"It is late," she murmured to herself; "but some of the stores are open yet. She thought she would like a juicy orange—and a little picture book, and some of the big nuts that Santa Claus brought her last year. Poor little Fan, she will be glad to see her mother home again."

She went from store to store, purchasing the small necessities that were urgent and the few luxuries for the sick child—alas! who can tell the good that a little money will sometimes work? And Mrs. Walker was so very, very poor.

It was late when at length she reached her home. One dim oil lamp burned in the hall of the tenement-house, but Mrs. Walker was used to that. She hurried up the stairs as fast as her wet and bedraggled skirts would allow her to move.

Strange! her room door was open. Two or three neighbors were round the bed. She hastened in with heart that throbbed wildly, she knew not why.

"Mrs. Ryan—Ellen Dean—she isn't any worse?"

"Worse? Oh, no, no, no! She's better. She'll never be sick and in pain again," sobbed warm-hearted Ellen Dean, throwing both arms round the mother's neck. "Oh, neighbor, don't fret. Surely she's better off where she is."

It was too true! Little Fan was dead—lying there as calm and beautiful as a waxen image.

"She slept till nine," said Widow Ryan, wiping her eyes, "and then she threw up both arms and called: 'Mother! mother! Oh, why don't mother come?' Oh, she fretted for you a while, and then fell asleep in Ellen's arms and never waked again."

Mrs. Walker clasped her hands wildly.

"Oh, may heaven deal the same bitter cup to her who kept me waiting on her idle whims when the dying child was calling for me in vain. Oh, Fanny! Fanny! Oh, my dead lamb!"

So she sobbed and wailed away the bleak hours of the wretched winter night beside the little one who had happily fallen asleep.

"If you please, ma'am, Mrs. Walker is here."

Cecile Fontaine, in the white cashmere and swansdown, was toying idly over her late breakfast of broiled birds and chocolate, served in silver and Sevres.

"What can she want? Show her in."

A gentleman complimenting a pretty young lady in the presence of his wife. "It's lucky I did not meet Miss Hopkins before I married you, my dear." "Well, yes, it is, extremely—for her," was the rejoinder.

Cecile absolutely started, as the tall, pale phantom rushed in, throwing down a package of money on the glistening double damask of the tablecloth.

"I won't take it!" she shrieked; "I won't take it! It's the price of blood!"

"What do you mean?" Cecile involuntarily recoiled.

"I mean that you murdered my child—yes, murdered her—yes, murdered her! I would not have let her die, had she been lying in my arms; but God took her while I was here, waiting on your idle follies! You kept me here, it is your hard heart that has made me childless! May God do so to you, and even more! Oh, you think that you are safe, walled in by wealth and power, but the curse of the poor and broken hearted can reach you through the barriers of pride and gold!"

"But, Mrs. Walker," Cecile began.

Mrs. Walker waited for no more, but rushed out of the room as she had entered it.

"She is crazed, wild!" said Mrs. Fontaine. "The loss of her child has deprived her of common sense and reason. But I really don't see that I am to blame!"

Nevertheless, Mrs. Fontaine's damask rose cheek had grown very pale, and she had but little appetite for the broiled birds and the frothing chocolate in the painted Sevres china!

And when little Charlie came in half an hour later, with golden hair all wet from its fresh curling, and blue, sparkling eyes, she caught him convulsively from his nurse's arms.

"My boy! my little fair-haired treasure! oh, what should I do if you were taken from me?"

And for a moment she realized the overwhelming weight of Mrs. Walker's word.

"Don't take him out this morning, nurse; the air is very raw and chill and he might take cold!"

"No, ma'am, I won't," and the nurse carried the little creature up to the nursery once more.

The second quadrille was just over at Mrs. St. Symon's grand ball that night. Mrs. Fontaine, flushed and beautiful, in pearls and a dress that glimmered like frosted snow beneath its floating draperies of tulle, had taken her husband's arm and strolled into the cool arcades of the conservatory, when a light touch fell on her shoulder—a whisper breathed across her ear.

"My child! Gracious heaven! What is the matter?"

"He was taken very ill about an hour ago with convulsions, and the doctor judged it best to send for you."

Not five minutes had elapsed before Mrs. Fontaine and her husband were rolling homeward in their carriage—she, whiter than monumental marble, with her hands trembling like a leaf.

"Oh, George! George! if he should be worse?"

"Courage, dearest," was her husband's reply. "Let us hope for the best."

The coachman had scarcely checked the horses at the door when Mrs. Fontaine sprang out and rushed up stairs to the nursery.

One cry—one wild, piercing cry—broke from her lips as she looked down at the lovely infant face whiter than the pillows against which it lay, and knew that she was too late.

Too late—and that fair corpse with the golden hair shading its forehead and the sweet lips closed forever, was all that was left of her one household treasure!

And then came back to her like a hideous dream, the words of that other childless mother:

"May God do so to you, and even more!"

"Take care—she is fainting!" cried the physician, and then a blessed forgetfulness came to her relief—a draught of the Lethe which heaven sends us in our utmost extremity.

A week afterward as Mrs. Walker sat alone in her solitary room, the tears slowly dropping on the plain sewing upon which she was engaged, a slight figure with hair of floating gold, and robes of the deepest black, glided up to her and threw its arms around her.

"I, too, have been deeply chastened," she murmured. "I, too, am a childless mother—and I have come to mourn with you!"

And then, with Mrs. Walker's tears warm upon her cheeks, Cecile Fontaine felt that she was forgiven.

Lack of Confidence.
From the Wall Street News.

"I would like to ask?" he softly whispered as he leaned over a broker's desk, "if this is a good time to sell stocks?"

"Certainly sir—certainly. Probably the best time we've had for the last five years."

"And I would further inquire," continued the man as he gently rubbed his hands together, "if this is a good time to buy stocks?"

"Certainly, sir—certainly. Haven't been a time in the past ten years when such golden opportunities were offered."

"Ah! yes. After dinner I will either buy or sell. The object now is to get the dinner. You couldn't loan me a quarter on present prospects, could you?"

"No, sir."

"Ah, exactly. That proves a want of confidence on the part of capital, and while this feeling exists a wise man will keep out of the stock market."

A gentleman complimenting a pretty young lady in the presence of his wife. "It's lucky I did not meet Miss Hopkins before I married you, my dear." "Well, yes, it is, extremely—for her," was the rejoinder.

Together they were looking over the paper. "Oh, my, how funny," said she. "What is it?" he asked. "Why here's an advertisement that says no reasonable offer refused."

"What's so odd about that?" "Nothing, nothing," she replied, trying to blush; "only those are exactly my sentiments." If that young man hadn't taken the hint and proposed then and there she would have hated him.

Judge Tourgee's Politics.

Judge Tourgee, having been assailed by the New York Evening Post for what it called the inconsistency in opposing Mr. Blaine's nomination and advocating his election, has published a long letter in the Tribune, in which he explains and justifies his position. He closes by saying:

Again, I could not support Mr. Cleveland because of the company he keeps. I do not refer now to his hours of relaxation, but to the public side of his character. He has associated with him upon this ticket one who was the counsellor, friend and champion of the Indiana Copperheads during the war. Now while I hold a man to be wanting in common manhood who will not forgive an open and honorable enemy and account himself, if his merits justify, worthy of the closest friendship and the highest honor, yet I deem him worse than a fool who ever forgets or forgives the man of mature years who had not courage enough to go with the rebels nor manhood enough to stand by the country, but who stabbed in the back those who fought for the liberty he now enjoys. Others may vote to put such a man where he may exercise the highest powers of the nation, but I never shall. Mr. Cleveland himself seems to have been blissfully ignorant that a war was in progress. He not only did nothing, but he said nothing. I once stood by while a gentleman who had a very fat dog drove some trespassing cows out of his grounds. After expelling the intruders, he turned upon the dog, who had simply sat upon the door-step and watched the proceedings in silence. "Take that, and that, and that," said the enraged owner, as he chucked one stone after another against the well-cushioned ribs of the delinquent. "I didn't expect you to run, but you might at least have barked!" Mr. Cleveland did not even bark, and Mr. Hendricks growled for the other side. Mr. Blaine did not enter the service. I am sorry for it, and do not doubt that he is also. But if he did not actually do any fighting for the country, he stood by the crowd that did fight. He showed his goodwill, and never permitted any doubt as to which side he was on.

At the time I wrote the article referred to by The Post I was of the general opinion that the celebrated "Mulligan letters" established at least a probable case of improper conduct in his public capacity. Having since that time carefully studied the entire correspondence and read all that both sides have had to say in regard to it, I wish now to say that, regarded from any point of view, I see no evidence of an abuse of any public trust. It was an unfortunate thing that he allowed himself to become the agent of such a company, and the victim of such a set of blackmailers as Fisher and Mulligan. It is a pity that he ever had to ask favors of Caldwell. Yet I do not see how any one could be harmed except those to whom the bonds were sold, and their loss he made good. In fact, it seems to me that the worst thing about the whole matter is the fact that the road did not pay. If it had been a paying concern it is probable that nothing would have ever been heard of it, for if known at all it would have been contented vastly to his credit. Mr. Blaine had a right to speculate with his own money or induce others to speculate with theirs, just the same as any other American citizen. It is not assumed that he used his position to sell the bonds or in any other manner in connection with the transaction. I am under obligations to the Democratic press for publishing the last batch of these letters. To my mind they explain the transaction, and show Mr. Blaine to be far more entitled to sympathy than blame for the part he took in it.

Cleveland as a Union Soldier Hater.
The Albany Journal prints from the record a plain and truthful statement showing the low estimate in which Grover Cleveland, from the time he sent a substitute to the War until now, has held the Veteran Soldiers of the Union. It is a statement that will amaze every friend of the soldier and every lover of the country's honor. A Peace Democrat when the country was imperiled by rebellion, Grover Cleveland has been anything but the soldier's friend ever since. As Mayor of Buffalo he declined to sign a bill making an appropriation for the observance of the beautiful ceremonies of Memorial Day. As Governor he has repeatedly vetoed bills for the passage of which was petitioned for by all the Grand Army posts of the State, and which were enacted by the unanimous votes of the members of the Legislature, comprising Democrats as well as Republicans. About the only soldiers' bills he approved were those which amended bills that had been signed by other Governors, and he hesitated to sign even some of the amended acts. Every soldier who reads from the record will appreciate the feeling with which Gov. Cleveland regards him. The record of Mr. Hendricks as a Copperhead and a friend of the South is well known. Grover Cleveland as a Union-soldier hater well deserves a place beside Mr. Hendricks.

"What's so odd about that?" "Nothing, nothing," she replied, trying to blush; "only those are exactly my sentiments." If that young man hadn't taken the hint and proposed then and there she would have hated him.

Facts Called For.

In an account published of the dedication of the new church at Siglerville, two facts were stated, that "the title of the property is made to a majority of the congregation without regard to name or ecclesiastical connection," and that "the people feel profoundly that while it may be law, it is not justice that church property should be held by a small minority of a congregation, a minority which gave little or nothing to secure the property, simply because this minority submits to ecclesiastical control or supervision." These are simple facts and if any person is disposed to doubt them he can have all his doubts removed by a short visit to Siglerville or vicinity.

In your issue of Oct. 2, "M. R." takes up this statement and adds: "This paragraph clearly refers to the property of the Milroy Presbyterian church." Does it?

But "M. R." puts the shoe on, and then, because he feels uncomfortable about it, goes on to make some comments and what he calls a "statement of facts." This statement of facts raises some inquiries, which in the name of truth and honesty we would like to have answered. He goes back nearly a quarter of a century to the subscription papers for the Milroy Presbyterian parsonage, which was bought in 1861 and repaired a few years afterwards. He says "a careful examination of them shows that the bulk of the money raised for this purpose was contributed by those who 'submit to the ecclesiastical control and supervision' of the Presbytery; or to be more precise, of the whole amount thus contributed, in all $3,274.40, $1,833.97 was subscribed and paid by those who are now or whose representatives are Presbyterians; $1,442.16 by those who, or whose representatives adhere to Mr. White, and the balance, $298.97, by those who have died or removed and have left no representatives or whose affiliations are unknown."

If "M. R." means anything by his article we suppose he is trying to show that the property of the Milroy Presbyterian church is not held by a small minority or a minority which gave little or nothing to secure the property. Does he not say that the bulk was given by those who now submit to ecclesiastical control?

Does "M. R." mean to make the impression on the public that that portion of the Milroy Presbyterian church which submits to control of Presbytery gave the bulk of the money for the parsonage? Is this true? If not how much did this minority or their fathers give? Did they give $1,833.97? He says that amount was given by those who or whose representatives are now Presbyterian. Does he mean that they are now connected with the Milroy church and belong to the minority which has possession of the property? What was given by this minority or their fathers? Does "M. R." mean to say that only $298.97 was given by those who have died or removed and have left no representatives, or whose affiliations are unknown? Does he mean to say that those who have died or moved away and left no representatives paid only $298.97? What does he mean by "representatives?" Have not nearly one half or more than one half of those who paid to the parsonage died or moved away or left no representatives? Or, do all who have died or moved away, or a majority of them, belong still to the minority which holds all the property?

When he gets through with his "statement of facts" about the parsonage we would like to ask him or some one who knows, about the Presbyterian church at Siglerville? Is it true as is generally believed that of the minority who submit to the control of Presbytery and who now have possession of that church and have their place of worship there, there is only one family who gave one cent to secure that property? May this not have something to do with the state of profound feeling in and around Siglerville, that while it may be law it is not justice that church property should be held by a minority however small which perhaps gave little or nothing to secure the property?

The majority of the Presbyterian congregation who adhere to Mr. White have made no effort to control the property. As they contributed to secure the property, churches and parsonage, they thought and still think in equity they have an interest in that property which Christian people ought to respect. But when the minority or their representatives were unwilling to allow them the use of the Siglerville church they peaceably withdrew.

We would respectfully inform "M. R." that we have not heard Mr. White say anything about the sin of schism or ever use the word schism in his preaching, but we have heard him repeatedly denounce in rigorous terms the sins of hypocrisy, lying, dishonesty and other violations of the moral law.

Put a Brand on Him.

"Women are a necessary evil," he said, bringing down his fist hard on the counter to emphasize the heartless remark. It was in the village store at West Milton, Saratoga county, and the speaker was the central figure of a group of bohemian philosophers. He was homey, a little and sixty.

"There's where I differ from you also, ether," said Mr. George T. Graham, of the same place. "Women are mostly what men make 'em. When husbands are brutish wives fall into submission or make home hot for the men; and they're unnatural in either character. Love them, and especially be good to them when they're sick, and you'll have no trouble. There's my own wife, now; she's suffered a good deal with dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and other ailments that took the bloom off her cheeks and the spring out of her step. Well, she saw an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC and thought it would be just the thing for her case. Goodness, I sent five miles after a bottle. She took it. I sent again after more. So several times. Trouble? Why, if you could see how much good it has done her you would say that women are the greatest of God's blessings, and PARKER'S TONIC is the next."

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. This change has been rendered necessary by substitutes imposed upon their customers by unprincipled dealers under the name of ginger; and as ginger is really an unimportant and flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all the bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac simile signature of Hixcox & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper. 16-48-47

BILIOUSNESS. Bilious symptoms invariably arise from indigestion, such as furred tongue, vomiting of bile, giddiness, sick headache, irregular bowels. The liver secretes the bile and acts like a filter or sieve, to cleanse impurities of the blood. By irregularity in its action or suspension of its functions, the bile is liable to overflow into the blood, causing jaundice, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, bilious diarrhoea, a languid, weary feeling and many other distressing symptoms. Biliousness may be properly termed an affection of the liver, and can be thoroughly cured by the grand regulator of the liver and biliary organs, BURDOCK'S BLOOD PURIFIER. Act upon the stomach, bowels and liver, making healthy bile and pure blood, and opens the culverts and siniceways for the outlet of disease. Sold everywhere and guaranteed to cure.

Blaine in Ohio.

CHILLICOTHE, Oct. 10.—Mr. Blaine left Columbus by a special train on the Scioto Valley road at 10 o'clock this morning. Mr. Hanna, of the committee, left the party, and ex-Governor Foster took charge. The first stop was at Circleville, where there was a large gathering in front of the court house. Mr. Blaine was received in the enthusiastic manner which has now become a matter of course on this tour. He was introduced by Judge Smith, of Circleville, as follows:

"If to be observed by an entire continent be a source of pride, the people of Ohio should be very proud to-day because the eyes of every state in the union are upon them, and the election by the people of Ohio on Tuesday next is awaited with deep solicitude throughout the length and breadth of the nation."
"Left now the only state that votes in October, the average degree of republican zeal in the country is to be tested by your vote, and your vote will be taken as an index to the vote of November. My only mission, therefore, is to urge upon you the importance of your action on Tuesday next, and ask you if you are ready for it. [Cries of "yes, yes," "ready, ready," and cheers.]

"For the first time in forty years—the first time since 1844, when Clay and Polk were the nominees of the two great parties—the tariff for protection became from the very first day of the campaign a subject for popular discussion. That discussion is well nigh closed, and the question is to be submitted to a jury of eight hundred thousand voters in your state; and as that jury decides may be the fate of the protective tariff in this country for a generation."

"It is too late now to go into elaboration of argument. Action is the word now. Action is your duty. I refrain, therefore, from doing more than to remind you that in all the critical elections of the past, unless the great crisis of 1863 and 1864 be an exception, never has a more weighty or more far-reaching responsibility devolved upon the people of Ohio than that which they will meet on Tuesday next, and meeting which, I hope and believe they will fully and faithfully discharge." [Great cheering.]
Blaine addressed a large assemblage at Chillicothe, Portsmouth and Ironton, where he arrived after dark.

A Mystery Solved.

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 12.—The "naked man," a famous mysterious individual of this locality, who has frightened women and children by his occasional sudden appearance to them while traveling the road along the Gaugauk river, south of this city, was captured yesterday, and thus was ended a mystery of many years. All previous efforts to capture the man or to discover his identity had failed, although the community was thoroughly aroused. He proved to be Edward Chatfield, a well-known millwright. He was never suspected and his actions are considered unaccountable. His wife and family are highly respected.

Mrs. Huntington's Will.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8.—The will of Mrs. Augusta M. Huntington, formerly Miss Shumway, was probated to-day. She gave $300,000 in trust to Bishop Whipple, of Minnesota, and directs that $100,000 be applied to the building of Shumway Hall on the Shattuck school grounds at Fairbank, Minnesota, and $50,000 for its endowment for the education of boys. Another $100,000 is for the erection of Johnston Hall, in memory of her father, in Seabury. The Divinity School of the same place is given an endowment of $50,000 for the purpose of assisting the students of that school.

Up in a Balloon.

ARGUSVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Young Mr. Charles C. Van Devere of this village, from early boyhood was infatuated with the project of making a balloon ascension. A few years ago he sought the privilege of accompanying an aeronaut on his trip among the clouds, but was not permitted to go. He then endeavored to make an ascension with Carlotto, who has made many successful air flights in the Mohawk Valley, but she declined to take a passenger. He went to make a balloon. He recently completed it, and advertised an ascension to take place this afternoon.

He says he has invented an air valve which can be governed with ease, and will enable an aeronaut to better command an air ship, and this ascension is intended to test its qualities.

Van Devere at an early hour this morning began the inflation of his balloon. About 500 spectators were present in the afternoon, anxiously waiting the movement of the amateur, who seemed confident that his voyage would be a success. With a few friends to assist him he was enabled to make a start about 4 o'clock. Loud cheers greeted him as he climbed into the basket.

The balloon after being released ascended slowly, and when a short distance from the ground he threw out all of his sand bags to lighten it, and then rose rapidly, and was lost to view in about six minutes among the dense clouds. It is not known where he landed.

Dynamite in Canada.

QUEBEC, Oct. 12.—About 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon an explosion occurred at the new parliament buildings, destroying a considerable portion of the masonry and the windows of the new structure, which was being roofed in. The explosion was at first supposed to be that of the boiler engine used for the hoisting of materials, but this proved not to be the case. Neither can it be attributed to gas. The general opinion appears to be that the explosion was caused by dynamite, but as none of that material is used on the works the mystery is how it came there. An investigation is now being held. The workmen all being away at dinner but one man was injured, and he escaped with a slight cut from a piece of stone. The shock was very severe and was felt all over the city. The windows of houses in the vicinity of the explosion were badly shattered.

Powder Mill Explosion.

CUMMINGSVILLE, Ont., Oct. 9.—The Hamilton powder mills were blown up to-day. Four men, William Murray, Henry Sibbles, George Matthews and William Heatherington were killed, and Albert Culp was badly burned about the head and legs, and Daniel Dougherty badly burned about the head and had limbs broken. Neither is expected to live. The appearance of the victims is sickening. It was with difficulty that some of the bodies were recovered. They were found stripped naked and a long distance off in the bushes with legs and arms broken and burned black. They were scarcely recognizable. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Cuban Soldiers Starving.

HAVANA, Oct. 9.—The official paper states the following: The situation of the army, owing to the suspension of its monthly pay, is really pitiable, and must have an early solution. Six months have passed since they received any money. Some of them have had none for a much longer time. The officers have been at the mercy of usurers obtaining the necessities of life. In several of the interior towns the troops are said to have taken food by force. Forty tin cans imported by the steamer City of Washington as containing lard were seized yesterday, and were found to contain opium. The transaction involves a heavy fine.

A Thousand Chinese Slaughtered.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—General Briere de Lisle has telegraphed the government confirming the report announced from Ha-Noi yesterday of an engagement between the French and Chinese in the valley of the Loo Chuan River, in Tonquin. The Chinese were attempting to execute an offensive movement on the Upper Loo Chuan river. They lost one thousand men. Captain Deynot, of the French foreign legion, was killed. Lieutenant Baillelle was wounded. General Negriers' column has gone up the Phuong river to cut off the retreat of the Chinese.

Ohio Coal Mines on Fire.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—A special from Nelsonville, Ohio, says all the syndicate mines, with the exception of Nos. 3 and 7, are on fire and special efforts are being made to extinguish them. W. A. Shoemaker & Co.'s hoppers were burned last night and have been burning all day. The fires cannot be extinguished, as it is impossible to get to where they are. No disturbance of any character has been reported up to this hour, 8 p. m.

Instantly Killed.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Oct. 8.—A carriage containing George and Alice Hall, of Stamford, Connecticut, was struck by an express train at Greylock crossing last night and both of the occupants instantly killed. They were the only children of an aged widow and had been visiting friends in Pownal. The young man's body remained on the engine pilot, while the body of the young lady was thrown a hundred feet from the crossing, landing on a bank ten feet above the level of the track.

Right of Way that May be Lost.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Oct. 9.—Farmers in the Kishacoquillas Valley who gave the right of way for the Seaboard, Pennsylvania and Western Railroad are threatening to interfere with the construction of the road if an attempt should ever be made to build it. They say that the conditions upon which they granted the right have been violated. They were assured that work would be begun early in the present year and thus there has been no movement in that direction. In plowing for their fall crops they left the ground that had been laid out for the road through their fields unplowed, in the expectation that it would soon be dug up and graded. In this they have been disappointed and some of them claim that they are released from their contract with the company. The right of way has never been obtained from this city to the end of the valley, near Mill Creek, this county, and no effort has been made to obtain it within the last six months.

A Clergyman on Trial.

ERIE, Oct. 9.—The Rev. J. W. Brockway of the Ellery circuit, New York, is on trial at the forty-ninth annual meeting of the Erie Conference of the M. E. Church. The Rev. Mr. Brockway is under indictment in the Chautauque county courts for assault and battery and resisting an officer, and is on trial in the church courts for the same offense. Cyrus Underwood, the town constable, went to collect taxes on the barn owned by the church and used by Brockway, and, failing to realize, seized the elder's saddle. Parson Brockway, who used to be a Democratic politician in Erie county prior to his conversion, wrestled with the minion of the law and prevailed. Hence the suit. Brockway will be sustained by his brother presbyters.

Up in a Canbrie Balloon.

COBLESKILL, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Charles Vandever, who ascended yesterday from Argusville in a canbrie balloon made by himself, landed in safety near Ryder's Corners, after a perilous voyage. This gentleman has long been anxious for distinction as an aeronaut, and has sought several opportunities for balloon ascension. After a time he resolved to make a balloon for himself, and, having done so, inflated it, and, in the presence of friends, began his ascension. He passed rapidly out of sight into the clouds, and left his friends on terra firma to marvel when and where he would return to it again.

Wholesale Massacre of Mexicans.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—A despatch to the Press from Pottsville says later advice of the massacre of Mexicans, near Tucson, show that Mr. and Mrs. Fritz, James Raymond and James Rafferty were all murdered on Rafferty's ranch last Friday. They were killed by persons who recently hung a Mexican boy, near Rafferty's ranch, and because the murderers feared that Rafferty, Fritz and Raymond would testify against them.

Officers Re-elected.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company met to-day and organized by re-electing the old officers. The following Executive Committee was selected: Norvin Green, T. T. Eckert, John T. Terry, John Van Horne, Harrison Durkee, Jay Gould, Russell Sage, Alonzo B. Cornell, Sidney Dillon, Cyrus W. Field and Samuel Sloan.

Shot While Searching for Liquor.

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 9.—Sergeant Thomas Malloy, of the soldiers' home at Tagus, was shot to-day while acting as sheriff and attempting to arrest Morgan Wallace whom he suspected of having liquor in his wagon. Wallace shot Malloy while he tried to search the wagon. Wallace was arrested and placed in the guard house of the home. Malloy died shortly after.

Died in his Sleeping Berth.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 12.—Rev. J. M. Robinson, of Indianapolis, was found dead in the berth of a sleeper on the Wabash railway at 7:30 yesterday morning. He got on the train at Shenandoah, Iowa, and was last seen alive at Hameston. The cause of his death is unknown. About $250 in notes and money were found upon his person.

Blaine at Lancaster Ohio.

LANCASTER, O., Oct. 12.—Blaine spent a quiet Sunday as the guest of his cousin, Hon. H. B. Ewing. In the forenoon he attended the Presbyterian church, and the afternoon he devoted to visiting in company with Judge Ewing, his relatives and old friends, of whom he has a large number in this vicinity.

Movements of Mr. Blaine.

MASSFIELD, O., Oct. 9.—Blaine left Canton this morning making short stops at Wooster, Crestline, Columbus, Shreve and Perryville arriving here at 1:30 this afternoon. At each place he spoke briefly thanking the people for the kind reception they gave him, and presenting the tariff as the great issue.

Killed by Cyclone.

ROME, Oct. 8.—Intelligence has been received here of a cyclone at Catania, on the island of Sicily. Trees were uprooted and houses destroyed. Twenty persons were killed and fifty were injured. Owing to the severity of the cyclone it was impossible to render any assistance to the sufferers during its prevalence.

General Butler Placed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—General Butler arrived at the Fifth Avenue hotel this morning. He expressed himself as well pleased with his return trip.

A Boston Man on Cleveland.

A Boston correspondent of the N. Y. Evening Post says that intelligence has been received in that city that a vast amount of information regarding the moral character of Cleveland has been gathered in Buffalo. From such of this "written evidence" as he has seen he concludes that "not only is Cleveland as vile a man as there is in this country, if these charges are true, but he is also the greatest fool, and the whole Empire State is derelict in not rising en masse and procuring his expulsion from office." As to the effect produced by this evidence he tells us:

"Some here believe that an atrocious conspiracy exists for political purposes. Another opinion is that it is a clear case of private blackmail and that all the charges can be silenced by the payment of sufficient money. Others, again, believe them all to be true."

Whereat the N. Y. Sun thus moralizes: "What a confession to make! There is doubt among intelligent men whether a candidate for the Presidency whom they are asked to vote for is 'as vile a man as there is in this country!' Even those who have committed themselves to his support, and who know of the evidence presented, can only reply to the charges that they suppose them to be part of a political conspiracy, or made for blackmailing purposes. Others, again, believe them all to be true."

"And this is the sort of discussion of the character of a man who aspires to be President of this great Republic which is going on among the most intelligent and best informed citizens of Boston, men, too, who have been numbered among his supporters."

"RESOLVED, that we should regard the election of Mr. Cleveland a calamity, politically and morally," is the unanimous opinion of the Congregational ministers of Chicago, as expressed at their meeting a few days ago. Not a single voice was raised in favor of Mr. Cleveland. And when a resolution was introduced emphatically endorsing Mr. Blaine, it was adopted by a vote of 19 to 5. Evidently Mr. Beecher's jocular method of treating transgressions of the moral code is not popular among the preachers in his own denomination in the "rowdy West."

"THE Democratic party," observes Philosopher Tilden, "consists largely of those who live by the work of their hands." This is true. Before the Emancipation Proclamation was issued the Democratic party consisted largely of those who lived by the work of other people's hands.

SAMUEL H. BENNING, of Walker township, one of the Republican candidates for County Auditor, is a gentleman who should receive every vote. He is well known and is universally esteemed. See that the ticket you vote contains his name.

Table Talk.

"The cream of the joke was," said the new boarder, "that the—"
"If you will say skim milk of the joke, we will understand you better," said the bread pudding man.
"Don't interrupt," continued the new boarder, "the landlady herself heard him giving out the conundrum."
"And what was it?" asked the chronic joker gloomily, after a long wait.

"Why are we all martyrs?"
There was a dead silence as the feeble old joke struggled to its legs, revealing the brand B. C. 65.

Then the new boarder answered in a voice he tried to render steady and truthful:
"Because we all perish at the steak."

Lines from Lovetille.

LOVETILLE, Oct. 9, 1884.

Chestnuts are plenty.
The cider is about all made.
Still more rain would be appreciated.

Apple-cutting parties seem to be popular just now.

Mr. William Taylor unfortunately lost two valuable hogs this week.

The Centre Line select school closed the fall term on Friday, the 3d instant.

We suggest another political meeting in Lovetille as the only hope of the re-election of that flag.

The farmers have commenced husking corn, and what we have seen seems very good, there being no soft ears among it.

Mrs. Mary Wilson, a resident of this place, departed for Clearfield last week where she intends sojourning a short time.

The Dunkards held their semi-annual meeting at the cross roads on Saturday and Sunday last. The weather being fine it was largely attended.

Mr. John Shank, of Warriorsmark, Huntingdon county, raised an immense crop of potatoes, there being over 3,000 bushels.

Miss Reachie A. Wright left Lovetille on Friday, the 3d inst., for Union Bridge, Maryland, where she will give instruction in four different branches in a graded school.

The pleuro-pneumonia is committing quite serious depredations among the hogs in Huntingdon county, a Mr. Fisher, of Eden Hill, having lost twenty-seven out of forty, and others have lost in proportion.

Why is it that some people will stand outside a church and chat while those inside are engaged in divine worship? It is very inconsiderate to do so, and those who have contracted such a habit either through thoughtlessness or natural irreverence will do well to give it up at once. It can best be done by cultivating the custom of going indoors whenever the hour for service arrives.

Mr. Isaiah Beck lost a valuable colt by death last week. The animal behaved in a very peculiar manner, running about wildly, shaking its head and gnashing its teeth. It continued without relief until it died. An examination revealed the fact that a timothy head about two inches long and about one-half inch of the stem had got into the colt's ear. Because the animal shook and tossed its head so often the timothy head penetrated about four inches deep, thus causing such peculiar behavior and finally death. WEN.

An Expression of Condolence and Thanks.

One of the children of Comrade George W. Rimer, of Pennington Post, G. A. R., Fairmount Springs, Pa., died during Mr. Rimer's illness, which event, in connection with acts of kindness performed in behalf of Mr. R., called forth the following:

HEADQUARTERS PENNINGTON POST 283,
G. A. R., DEPT. OF PENN'A.,
FAIRMOUNT SPRINGS, PA., Oct. 4, '84.
WHEREAS, It has pleased an all-wise Providence, in His mysterious workings, to keep from our Post room (weeks past and likely weeks to come) Comrade George W. Rimer, P. P. C., we, the members of the post, believe it to be our duty to express our regard for him as a conscientious and diligent worker in the cause of the G. A. R.; therefore be it

Resolved, That the fidelity and singleness of purpose shown by him for the advancement of our noble order are worthy of commendation.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with our comrade and his family in the death of their child, which took place during his sudden and severe affliction.

Resolved, That we tender a vote of thanks to the comrades of Post 95 and others who so kindly aided our comrade while suffering from injuries received by a fall at the semi-annual encampment at Bellefonte.

Resolved, That the members of this Post hold in grateful remembrance and by these resolutions extend thanks to the citizens, both ladies and gentlemen, who cared for and so kindly contributed to his comfort and welfare while at Bellefonte.

Resolved, That we extend thanks to the press of Bellefonte which so kindly lent the use of their valuable columns to inform the public of our comrade's case and condition.

Resolved, That we tender Comrade George F. Harris, M. D., of Bellefonte, our kindest regards for his services so gratuitously rendered our comrade during his affliction at the above named place.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolutions be sent to Post 95, G. A. R., Dept of Penn'a., also to Comrade George F. Harris, M. D., and be published in DAILY NEWS OF BELLEFONTE.

An Interesting Letter from Baileyville.

BAILEYVILLE, Oct. 8, 1884.

A review of the situation convinces us that Providence has indeed favored the farmers this year. In addition to the excellent wheat and oats crops already harvested, the corn crop proves to be good in quantity and of most excellent quality, at least so far as our immediate vicinity is concerned.

Business is moving along about as usual. Our energetic young merchants, J. C. Goheen & Bro., in addition to their already good trade, have made arrangements to deliver goods regularly to the people at Scotia Mines. They are at present in the city to lay in a supply of new goods and will no doubt bring with them a stock that will cause the "natives" to open their eyes and mouths in amazement. They are determined not to be "out-generated" and persons dealing with them may be sure of bargains and fair dealing. The senior member of the firm may possibly bring with him the necessary outfit to go on a wedding tour but—I da not know about it—so will refer all interested parties to friend Brooks. Perhaps he can explain.

The babbling Brooks may id-al time away But while the sun shines J. C. G. makes hay.

Miss Emma, daughter of Mr. A. E. Clemson, has been on the sick list for the past few weeks, but we are happy to state, is rapidly improving and will no doubt soon recover.

Mr. and Mrs. Bathurst are also recovering from their recent injuries.

All lovers of fine cattle can treat their eyes to a feast by calling on Mr. Jas. B. Irvin of this place. He has in his possession a full-blooded Guernsey calf, the sight of which should be an incentive to all farmers to make every possible effort to improve the quality of their cattle. Y.

—The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Philip Kephart, of Unionville, occurred in the Presbyterian church last Thursday morning, the body being brought to this place on the 9.45 o'clock train accompanied by many friends. About two hundred people were present in the church, and the services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Pardoe, of Unionville, assisted by Rev. Wm. Laurie, the pastor loci. The music was beautifully and impressively rendered by a choir of five persons, and Rev. Mr. Pardoe spoke feelingly of the sad event which called so many people together.

—Tommy Cowell, the son of Mr. James Cowell, of Bunker Hill, was hit on the head with a stone on Friday, and considerably hurt. The wound caused the child to faint and it was some time before the flow of blood could be stopped. The lad was able to be about again on Saturday. There is an ordinance against stone throwing yet accidents from this source are of quite frequent occurrence. This time the stone was thrown by a girl.

—Wm. P. Duncan & Co., the enterprising and prosperous machinists of this place, are putting in a new Turbine water wheel to run their works. In view of the fair prospects for Republican success this fall, it will be necessary to enlarge the capacity of their business to the greatest extent possible.

WHAT WILL convince you of the wonderful curative properties combined in HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, if the remarkable cures that have been effected by its use fail to impress upon your mind this repeatedly proven fact? Thousands are using it, and all declare that it is a medicine possessing all and even more than it. My friend, if you are sick or in that condition that you cannot call yourself either sick or well, go and get a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and realize yourself how this medicine hits the right spot, and puts all the machinery of your body into working order.

From the Registrar of Deeds for Middlesex County, Northern District.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Gentlemen—It affords me much pleasure to recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. My health has been such that for some years past I have been obliged to take a ton of some kind in the spring, and have never found anything that hit my wants as your SARSAPARILLA. It tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over. Respectfully yours,
J. F. THOMPSON.

One of our prominent business men said to us the other day: "In the spring my wife got all run down and could not eat anything; passing your store I saw a pile of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA in the window, and I got a bottle. After she had been taking it a week she had a rousing appetite, and it did her everything. She took three bottles, and it was the best three dollars I ever invested."

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Call in and inspect our No. 1 goods. Then you will know where to purchase when your cupboard needs replenishing.

Politics in West Virginia.

ST. MARY'S, W. Va., Oct. 7.—After reviewing the procession at Parkersburg last evening Mr. Blaine, by special request, went up to Marietta, Ohio, attending a meeting. He made a short speech, in which he made an interesting allusion to the origin and early history of the place. He remained all night at Marietta, and was ferried across the Ohio to Williamstown, where he met his special at 8.30 this morning, when it came up from Parkersburg.

WHEELING, Oct. 7.—At Sistersville, Tyler county, W. Va., a small station on the Ohio river road, about a thousand people were waiting the arrival of the train. They were wildly enthusiastic, and as the train was about to move off a young man jumped upon the rear platform and asked Mr. Blaine to give him something as a souvenir—a handkerchief or anything. Mr. Blaine searched his pockets for something, but could not find even a handkerchief.

In the meantime the train was moving and the brakeman and several members of the state committee who were standing by urged the young man to get off. "No, I won't go until he gives me something," Blaine, give me something," Goff, make him give me something," The appeal was so earnest that it touched everybody present. One of the gentlemen handed Mr. Blaine a telegraph blank, on which he hastily scrawled his autograph. The young man jumped off and ran back along the track, shouting and waving his trophy over his head. The crowd cheered and as soon as he reached the foremost of them an old gentleman seized the paper and tore it in two, keeping one part for himself. Mr. Blaine remarked afterward that he would have given the young man his hat, only that he had some important papers in it. The next stop was at New Orleansville, where Mr. Blaine and Hon. H. W. Tenny made each a brief speech.

Logan in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—General Logan arrived at the Broad street station at 4 o'clock and met with a grand ovation, the depot and streets in the vicinity being densely crowded. He was at once driven to the Continental hotel where dinner was served. Among the first callers was Senator Don Cameron. After dinner the general was driven to the Academy of Music.

Long before the arrival of General Logan at the Academy of Music this evening the auditorium and galleries were thronged by thousands of people, and upon the inauguration of the proceedings standing room was not even obtainable in the aisles and entrances to the lower floors. Mrs. Logan, with several lady friends, occupied a box adjoining the stage, and prior to her husband's arrival was the recipient of several bouquets, one of which was presented by Mayor Smith. The remaining boxes and the auditorium were largely filled with ladies. The distinguished guest of the evening, upon his arrival, was greeted with loud cheers.

After addresses by Chairman James Dobson and General James A. Beaver, General Logan spoke for nearly an hour upon what he characterized as the paramount issue of the contest, which was whether the republican or American idea—that of protection to all our industries—or whether the English or democratic idea of free trade and low wages shall predominate.

Another Slander Killed.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 7.—A paragraph appeared in the Philadelphia Times of recent date, from Brownsville, stating that the strongest opposition to Blaine in Western Pennsylvania will be found in Brownsville, his native place, because he had refused to attend the funeral of his mother in 1871, fearing that it would involve a recognition of the Catholic faith. The statement is simply one of the many malignant falsehoods that have been put into circulation against Mr. Blaine since the opening of this campaign of slander and misrepresentation. It is absolutely false, both in statement and implication. In the first place, there was no funeral of Mr. Blaine's mother at Brownsville in 1871, or any other year, and, therefore, he could not have refused to attend the funeral then. Mrs. Blaine died in Minnesota, and was buried there, as she had lived, in the Catholic faith. Some time afterwards Mr. Blaine had her remains disinterred and brought to Brownsville, where they now repose by the side of those of her husband. Mr. Blaine has since had a handsome monument erected upon the spot. As is usual in such cases, there was no funeral, for it was not a burial; it was simply a removal, and was not accompanied with the customary ceremonies attending an interment.

A Storm Shakes Up the State Capital.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 8.—One of the most disastrous storms that has visited here this season put in an appearance at dusk this evening. It came from the northwest and confined itself to a width of not over half a mile. It swept down trees, unroofed several houses and carried away the roof and lower frame work of the carriage bridge across the Susquehanna river. The storm was not over ten minutes in duration and was one of the most violent that has occurred here for years. It confined itself almost exclusively to the river front.

Blaine and Logan.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 6.—General John A. Logan arrived here from Huntington at 12 m. en route through the southern part of the State. Large crowds greeted him along the route. Gen. Logan stopped off here and made a speech to a large audience. He left two hours later. He will stop at all towns up the valley and through the Virginia line. There was much enthusiasm demonstrated and firing of cannons. Speaker John G. Carlisle passed through the city this morning en route to Point Pleasant, where he speaks to-day.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 6.—Blaine's party left Wheeling at 8 o'clock this morning, by special train, on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, for Grafton. At the Wheeling depot there was quite a demonstrative crowd, and as the train moved slowly out of the city the workmen came out of the shops and the people out of their houses and cheered. The first stop was at Mountsville.

At Cameron, Littleton, Marmigton, and Farmville there was a brief stop at each point. Blaine spoke briefly of the importance to West Virginia of a protective tariff. At Fairmont there was quite a large meeting. Mr. Blaine left the train and addressed the people from the stand.

Great Fire at South Bethlehem.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Oct. 7.—At 3 o'clock this morning fire started under the stage of the Grand opera house, which resulted in the total destruction of the entire building and the gutting of a row of four-story brick buildings adjoining. In the lower portion of the opera house were three large stores, which were also burned. One was occupied by F. H. Fenner, butcher; another by G. W. Rhodes, who kept the Bethlehem iron company's store, his stock being valued at $40,000.

William Wink's liquor store in the block adjoining was burned. Milton E. Lawler's hardware store was damaged to the extent of $10,000. The opera house belonged to E. P. Wilbur, president of the Lehigh Valley railroad company. The loss is $60,000. During the progress of the fire a number of barrels of liquor were rolled into the streets. Some firemen broke in the heads of the barrels and drank the liquor like water. Many of them became helplessly drunk, and one, named Manser, fell off an awning roof and broke his back.

Horns and Hoofs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Two wild Texas steers escaped from the Central stock yards, in Jersey City, today. They knocked down two men named Gerardine and Trainor, but they escaped serious injury. One of them butted the show window of C. E. Kennedy's drug store, smashed a large pane of plate glass and ruined a quantity of display bottles and medicines. Matthew Clark, a laborer, attempted to stop the animals and was tossed into the air, his chest being torn open. George Irie, a broker, was knocked down and trampled upon. Mrs. Perdie Van Tassel was knocked down and rendered unconscious. Her condition is such that doubts are entertained of her recovery. One of the steers was beguiled into joining a herd of domestic cattle which had been driven from the abattoir for that purpose. The other was shot and its throat cut. The carcass was taken possession of by those who assisted in the killing. The owners of the steers could not be found.

Admitted to an Ohio College.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—The Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware has just admitted into the school a girl who has come all the way from China to be educated in Ohio. Miss Hu King Eng is the daughter of the Rev. Hu Yong Mi, the reserve delegate from the Foo-Chow Conference, and also President Elder of the Hohchiang district. She is a bright, intelligent girl of 18. She was born of Christian parents, as the family of her grandfather, Hu, was the second which embraced Christianity thirty years ago. The object of Miss Hu King Eng in coming to this country is to obtain a thorough English education, then to study medicine, and go back to work among the women of her own land. At present her knowledge of English is limited, as her education has been conducted in the mission schools in her own language. The ladies are interested in her success, and special contributions are being made to aid her in her effort.

A Bold Editor.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 6.—This morning the city editor of the Daily Democrat of this place succeeded, after a long and exciting chase, in capturing a burglar. The thief was employed by a farmer named John Wyman, near Hunter's station. He came there a tramp ten days ago, and was given work. Yesterday, while the family were at church, the ex-tramp, who is a native of Berlin and goes by the name of Frederick Wilhelm Schommartz, robbed his employer of a large amount of money, a suit of clothes, a revolver, hat, and a valuable watch, and left for parts unknown. The police have been on the lookout for him ever since. To-day he was captured on the railroad a little east of this place, as stated above.

A Train down a Precipice.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 5.—A Northern Pacific freight train on the St. Paul and Duluth Railroad, while passing a steep bluff near Fond du Lac, Minn., this morning, left the track, which had been undermined by a heavy rain last night. The locomotive and tender and six loaded and two empty cars went down the precipice into the St. Louis River, taking with them three men, who were drowned. Their names were B. C. Harter, engineer; Stephen Jodkins, fireman, and Olson, a brakeman.

Breaking Up a Republican Meeting.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 7.—Louis E. McComas, candidate for Congress for the Sixth district; Charles F. Markell and Postmaster Charles W. Miller of this city were billed to address a Republican meeting at Wolfsville, eighteen miles from here, last night. The speakers noticed that trouble was brewing, but began speaking. The crowd became more noisy as the speaking proceeded, and after Messrs. McComas and Markell had finished the disturbance reached a climax. The crowd refused to let Mr. Miller speak and threw stones, hooted, hissed, and threatened the gentlemen with bodily harm. The meeting broke up in the greatest confusion, and the speakers departed amid volleys of pistol shots and stones. The Democrats of this city are begging newspapers and correspondents not to mention the act.

At Old Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 5.—During the annual "rush" at Yale College, on Saturday, two of the sophomores, R. H. Wyeth, of Philadelphia, and T. L. Bayne, of New Orleans, had all their clothing torn from their persons except a few strips of trouser legs and their shoes and stockings. The idea of the "rush" is for the sophomore and freshmen classes to try to push each other off the sidewalk and secure pieces of their clothing as trophies. The freshmen got rather the best of Saturday's contest, but nobody was seriously hurt. In the evening the sophomores called on those freshmen who had made themselves particularly conspicuous in the "rush" and hazed them.

A Shanty Blown into a Lake.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The storm on Lake Michigan last night blew away the small shanty in which the laborers employed in the inlet of the lake tunnel at Hyde Park were lodged. It was set on piles in the lake about a mile from the shore. There were sixteen men in all employed on the inlet, and by the carrying away of the shanty they were left clinging to the strings or beams in the most perilous positions. One of the men came ashore on a plank near South Chicago, and it is feared the others have been drowned. The life saving crew has gone to their rescue.

A New Church.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Work will be begun to-morrow on a handsome new Presbyterian church on Connecticut avenue, in the northwestern part of this city, for which subscriptions were made a year and a half ago. Donald Cameron, $1,000; Samuel Sheilabarger, $1,000, and several non-residents, $1,000 each, including the widow of the late Governor Morgan, of New York.

Gloomy Reports from Ireland.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Irish Executive, Earl Spencer, has sent to the Government quite gloomy reports relative to the prospects of the coming winter. Although the harvest in Ireland is reported to be good, the low prices of produce prevent the farmers from meeting the payment of their rents. Should the landlords insist upon their full legal rights, evictions will ensue and crime will revive.

Local Election in Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 6.—The returns as received indicate that the constitutional amendment providing for biennial sessions of the legislature has been carried by a large majority. Many towns that voted largely against the amendment five years ago have now voted for it this year. The result of the election for town officers, so far as heard from, does not indicate any material political change.

A Williamsport Gun Store Robbed.

WILLIAMSPORT, Oct. 5.—Some time after midnight last night the gun store of Gable & Allen, on Fourth street, was broken into and a large number of fine revolvers and guns were carried off. The robbers secured the property by smashing in a large plate of glass in the window where the guns and pistols were displayed. The loss will reach $1,500.

The Indiana Campaign.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 7.—The first of a series of four joint discussions upon the political issues of the day between W. H. Calkins, republican candidate for governor of Indiana, and Isaac P. General Beaver at Martinsburg.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 7.—General James A. Beaver spoke here to-night to one of the largest and most enthusiastic Republican meetings ever held in this part of the state. His discussion of the tariff question was able and entertained the audience two hours. Before the meeting a large body of ex Union and Confederate soldiers called on him and was introduced by Captain Riggs, who said he hoped yet to see Beaver governor of Pennsylvania. The General responded in a pleasant speech. J. B. Snodgrass, on the part of the Confederates, made a happy speech.

A New Departure.

One good result of the hard times a few years ago, was the bringing into life an article in proprietary medicine, which gave to every purchaser a full equivalent for his money. The rule of this class of medicines is from 10 to 25 doses for $1. The best only reaching 40. Messrs. Hood & Co. took a new departure and in the article now so well and favorably known as Hood's Sarsaparilla, they gave the unprecedented quantity of 100 doses for $1. These facts commend this remedy to the consideration of the sick, also the well, for they are liable to be sick.

—The attention of the members of the Sons of Veterans organization is again called to the meeting in Gregg Post hall on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The organization now has more than 30 members. New accessions are made at almost every meeting.

—Quite a brilliant dress parade and demonstration was made by the young men's Blaine and Logan club of Philipsburg on Wednesday evening, Oct. 1. Col. D. H. Hastings aroused them to intense enthusiasm by one of his peculiarly happy speeches.

—We are assured by Mr. George Bible, manager of the Centre Democrat, that there will be only about twelve columns of plate matter in that paper instead of thirty-six. He is evidently in love with the new economic move and will explain all about it in the forthcoming issue.

—James Curns, a young man who has recently been living at the Poor House, died at 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning, the 7th instant, of heart disease. He has a sister living at Snow Shoe Intersection. Deceased is spoken of as a very fine young man. The funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

—The greatest caution should be observed by those who walk on the railroad, even in Bellefonte. An esteemed young lady narrowly escaped a serious accident a few days ago. When on the railroad not far from Gerberich & Hale's mill she stepped from one track to the other to avoid a passing engine and failed to observe another engine which was moving in the opposite direction on the other track. A gentleman, noticing her perilous situation, shouted to her, and she stepped from the track just in time to avoid being run over. As it was, the engine passed over the lower part of her dress.

Literature for the Young.

Perhaps there is no single vice which is more alarming in its effects on the youth of the present age than the reading of sensational literature which has such wide circulation. Its evil influences are apparent in our town, and have been detected by those who have surveillance over the young. The boys who read the ten cent and five cent novels the most are those who are the most inclined to commit crime and to shock the sensibilities of their friends who trusted them, by the commission of acts against law and society. This has been proved true by individual instances among the boys of Bellefonte which all have had the opportunity to observe. Perhaps the instructors of youth and those who have boys in their employ have had their notice more particularly called to this. The exploits of the daring criminals of whom these novels tell are painted in vivid language which engrosses the boy's entire interest and makes him desire to escape from the restraints of modern civilization to live over again the lives of these fictitious personages.

If this boy attends school his studies are neglected. He loses his interest in them and his mind is less capable of grasping them readily. If he is engaged in some useful occupation, the temptation is strong within him to break away from his seemingly monotonous life, and by the robbery of his employer's money-drawer and the purchase of a revolver and dirk, to take a conspicuous position among those whose deeds shall hereafter figure in the five-cent literature of the day. A western boy will travel to New York to become a leader in the Bowery Gang of roughs, while an eastern lad will probably wander to the West with the burning ambition to slay a dozen Red men and associate with the cowboys of that region. Some times the desire to be a pirate will influence him and he will run away to sea. This is perhaps the most desirable of all the boyish manias as the realities of a seaman's life are calculated to awaken his sympathies for humanity instead of leading him to prey upon it.

We feel like cautioning parents to exert a closer inspection over the literature which their boys read; and also give the girls some attention if you do not want them to run away with a coachman when they come to the so-called age of discretion.

About the first genuine excitement since the G. A. R. encampment, occurred in Bellefonte on Tuesday of last week. It also furnished a temperance lesson to all who are so wise as to profit by it. A well known ruralist, whose name is not necessary "to point a moral or adorn a tale," came to town in a big lumber wagon, driving two spirited horses. His ten year old son was with him. This respected ruralist cultivated the too intimate acquaintance of Mr. John Barleycorn and before the afternoon was ended he was unable to manage his horses. Several times they started to run away but were caught. At length when the ruralist was about to pay one more visit to John B's headquarters he fell into the arms of Capt. Montgomery, who, assisted by Special Officer Ryan, conducted him to the cooler. His young son was then delegated to drive the horses home, and we hope that when the ruralist was again permitted to breathe the pure air of liberty he was a soberer and a wiser man.

—On Saturday night, the 4th, several springs located near Storetown in Cambria county, this State, increased the volume of water which flows from them. One, especially, enlarged its dimensions to the size of a veritable creek and washed away the spring house built over it. This increased flow of water is unaccountable except on the supposition that all the residents of that vicinity have substituted beer for water as a beverage since St. John's candidacy began.

—The painting and other work on the interior of the new Presbyterian Sunday-school building is about completed and it will soon be ready for the furniture. The ground outside is to be beautifully sodded and terraced and ornamented with beds of plants and flowers. The congregation look forward to the time when they will hold all the religious meetings except church service in this building. As it will be heated by steam it will be well suited for such purposes.

—The Mechanics Savings Bank of Altoona suspended payments Tuesday, the 7th. The withdrawal of an account of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for $54,000 is said to be the cause. The bank officials state that they are not able to give the amount of assets and liabilities.

—The Evening Journal, of Philipsburg, records that Mr. Norman S. Keyser, of Milesburg, has moved to the former place and expects to open a saddlery and harness establishment.

The Borough Council of Bellefonte.

The chairman of the borough council did not occupy his usual position in that body on Monday evening, October 6, and Mr. Shortlidge presided, there being very few members present and two of those entered only after the business was half transacted.

The citizens—not members of council—who were present were Mr. Samuel Lewin, ex-Judge Orvis, Dr. R. L. Dart and Engineer Ryan.

Judge Orvis appeared in the interest of Mrs. Shortlidge, to impress upon council (especially the Street committee) the necessity of making such repairs on the street, or wagon road, in the rear of her property as will prevent the water running over and damaging it, and the street also from encroaching on the property. A wider gutter and a wall are required. The part of the Street committee which happened to be present consented to give its attention to the subject, and Judge Orvis with the concluding caution to act before the next court, bade the council a respectful adieu.

The committees of council evidently were in a condition of "masterly inactivity" during the past fortnight, the Finance committee not responding at all, the Street committee merely mentioning that the trench digging operations on Bishop street are in progress, and the Fire and Police committee reporting that bids for the removal of the Undine House had been received, but none thus far accepted. The Water committee reported that the water signal has been put up at the reservoir and is working satisfactorily.

The importance of the adoption of some policy relative to a tax on water used for building purposes was urged by Col. Shortlidge, and a motion prevailed instructing the committee to formulate a definite plan to report to the next meeting of council.

Mr. Bartley requested the grade of Willow Bank street at a point between the bridge and Mr. Olewine's property, where he is beginning the erection of a building.

Death of Mrs. Philip Kephart.

On Monday afternoon, October 6 at 4:45 o'clock, the grim messenger Death closed the earthly life of Mrs. Philip Kephart, of Unionville. Several times during the past year she had hovered at death's door, when on each such occasion a merciful convalescence interfered and spared her longer to her loving family and friends. Now "life's fateful fever o'er, she sleeps well." Over the river the boatman pale has splashed his silver oars. Naught but the earthly tenement remains for those left behind to weep over; the redeemed spirit of Martha Kephart has entered upon a new existence.

She was Martha Mitchell, daughter of John Mitchell, a former sheriff of this county. She leaves a loving husband and three affectionate sons—William, Miles and Harry. The wife and mother who departed was in her 69th year. She had numerous relatives and friends in all parts of the county who knew and admired her for her womanly worth and singularly pure and beautiful character. The family have the sympathy of these. May the consolation of the Comforter also be theirs.

The funeral services were held in this place last Thursday morning. The body was conveyed to this place on the 9:45 a. m. train and then taken to the Presbyterian church where services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Pardoe, Presbyterian minister at Unionville. The interment was in the Union cemetery.

Another Death.

Mr. Albert Ammerman, a well known citizen of Bishop street, died Tuesday morning, the 7th, after a long and prostrating illness. His wife and three daughters survive him, to whom his death, though not unexpected, is a severe affliction. He was in the eightieth year of his age. The funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

—An interesting event to the survivors of the 93d Regt. Pa. Vols. will occur at Gettysburg on Thursday, the 30th. A reunion and the dedication of a monument on the spot where the 93th fought in that decisive battle of the war will be the principle features of the occasion. The programme seems to be for all survivors of the regiment with their wives and children to meet at Lebanon, Pa., in time to depart in a special excursion train from that place on the 30th at 6:30 a. m. for Gettysburg, returning from Gettysburg to Lebanon at 6 p. m. Round trip ticket from Lebanon, $2.25.

Who Will be Nominated?

A change must soon take place in the expressed determination of the members of the Democratic judicial conference or the Democrats will have no candidate and A. O. Furst, Esq., will have it all his own way. Before the Huntingdon delegates departed on Wednesday they announced that they would never vote for the renomination of Judge Hoy. They concede to Centre county the right to the candidate, and say they will vote for any other man than Mr. H. This is a somewhat remarkable ultimatum on the part of the Huntingdon upstarts, as Judge Hoy has made sacrifices which entitle him to the nomination. He has given up a profitable law practice, and it seems like base ingratitude to act in this way in reference to his candidacy.

Of course, the delegates from Centre will, under the circumstances, never consent to vote for the nomination of Mr. Bailey. Rather than do such a thing as that, they will part with their good right hands.

To add to the perplexity of our untried friends, ex-Judge J. H. Orvis declines to accept a nomination. He don't consider the office worth the fight. He has stepped at once into a profitable practice, and one bird in the hand is to him worth a half dozen in the bush. This is about the extent of Centre county's judicial material, and what to do they know not.

It's none of our funeral, and we have never heretofore expressed our preference between the opposing candidates. But it's a fact that Bailey cannot compare with Judge Hoy as a candidate for such a position, and if our good friend is rejected, the Democrats will richly deserve defeat.

Valentine-Burnside.

MARRIED.—In Ironton, Mo., on Tuesday, Sept. 30, 1884, by Rev. Geo. C. Betts, Henry C. Valentine, of Bellefonte, Pa., to Miss Sara Thomas Burnside, of this city.

The wedding was, by appointment, a quiet one, although the usual attendance at such ceremonies were elegant and in excellent taste. The presents were numerous and costly. About fifteen special friends were present. After the ceremony, congratulations were heartily extended to the fair bride and lucky—and deserving groom. The editor regrets that he could not be there, and trusts that his congratulations and good wishes may be taken with confidence in their sincerity. May all things good and pleasant appertain unto the new Benedict and his happy bride.

Immediately after the wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine departed for their future home in Bellefonte.

The above is copied from the Iron County Register, published at Ironton, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Valentine will be absent on their honeymoon journey until about the 14th or 15th instant. As soon as the new residence being erected by Mr. Bond Valentine on Curtin street is completed they will occupy it. We unite with other Bellefonte friends in extending our most cordial congratulations and best wishes.

Thoughts Occasioned by a Young Man's Marriage.

The following very neatly expressed sentiments regarding a recent important event in life of one of Bellefonte's young citizens have been sent to us for publication:

For the past ten or twelve days we have missed the pleasure of looking into the frank and genial face of our citizen and friend, H. C. Valentine. We have missed the manly form, the buoyant step; and our ears have not lately heard the music of a voice that finds expression in grace and motion, and mould of form.

We are glad to know that his absence is not enforced. In these slipshod and degenerate days, to be able to return and re-occupy a position of trust, is evidence that scrupulous integrity yet abides. Harry returns not as he went, encumbered only with satchel and umbrella, but handicapped with one, whose gentle graces and loving ways taught him that it was not good for man to travel alone the pilgrimage of life.

Then, when they come home, let us rejoice and be glad in the knowledge of the "eternal fitness of things."

—Mr. John Schall, of Rock Springs, is one of the notable residents of that place. On Monday afternoon, the 6th, he spent a short time in Bellefonte and of course paid his respects to the DAILY NEWS. When we consider that Mr. Schall is 84 years of age we are surprised at his activity and sprightliness. But all his surroundings are also antique. Of the two horses which he drives it is said that one is about 32 years old and the other 26. The wagon in which he rides has rolled and jolted over the roads of Centre county during the past 30 years or more. Although Mr. Schall is not blessed with a superfluity of the things of this life he is happy and contented, which is better than wealth.

—There were exactly 17½ columns of plate matter, sent here from the city, printed in the Centre Democrat last Thursday, but the enterprising manager of that journal neglected to make the expected explanation.

—Samuel Tilden, the Democratic sage, has written another letter which indicates that his mind as well as his body is failing.

—In a recent decision of the Supreme Court it is held that the pay of county commissioners is limited to the per diem fixed by the statute and they have no right to demand payment for additional expense incurred by them in tramping through the county for the purpose of holding appeals, and in visiting and examining county bridges.

Republican Mass Meeting.

A grand Republican mass meeting will be held in the Court House, in Bellefonte, on Thursday evening, Oct. 23. All the Blaine and Logan clubs in this section are invited to attend, and also all citizens who want to hear the issues calmly and earnestly discussed. Among the speakers will be Senator John J. McFarlane, of Philadelphia, who is one of the most eloquent orators in the State. Let it be an immense and enthusiastic meeting.

A mass meeting will also be held in Philipsburg on Friday, Oct. 24.

LITTLE LOCALS.

—The steam heat was turned on the pipes on Friday.

—Music nights at the rink will hereafter be Tuesday and Friday instead of Tuesday and Saturday.

—Several communications are omitted from this issue because of important political matter which requires immediate insertion.

—The funeral services over the body of George Whippo on Sunday were largely attended. Rev. Mr. Woodcock, of this place, officiated.

—Mrs. James Lane departed for Philadelphia Monday morning; Mrs. Robert Valentine for Middletown, and Miss Julia Valentine for Baltimore.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Blackburne are residing at 1507 North Eighth street, Philadelphia, where they are at home to friends. Mrs. B. was formerly Miss Celia Landis.

—Mr. John Bullock of this place accompanied his relative, Mrs. C. F. Montgomery, to Philadelphia, on Thursday, and will enjoy himself generally for a few days.

—Mrs. George Harris and Miss Kate Curtin, both ladies daughters of ex-Gov. Curtin, departed on Thursday for Ithica, N. Y., where they will be guests at the home of Mr. William Sage.

—Rev. Asper, a Lutheran minister from Maryland, will preach for the Lutheran congregation at Peas Creek on Saturday evening, the 18th, in Aaronsburg on Sunday morning, the 19th, and in Millheim on Sunday evening.

—The donation parties have commenced. Rev. W. E. Fischer, of Centre Hall, being surprised and delighted by a visit from members of his congregation a few days ago. They departed, leaving a large number of valuable and useful articles.

—Begging the Watchman's pardon for being obliged to contradict it, the DAILY NEWS did not say on Wednesday that the Judicial conference "had adjourned sine die." We stated that such was the prospect at the time of going to press, and so it was, though afterwards changed.

—The executive committee of the Centre county Sabbath-school Association held another meeting on Thursday morning, the 9th, adopting a programme of exercises for the convention at Port Matilda on the 13th and 14th of November. The programme will soon be published.

—It is believed that the coming winter in Europe will be one of the hardest, in its sufferings by the poor, experienced there in centuries.—Mill-hus Journal. Yes, and in advocating the cause of the Democratic free trade party, you are doing what you can to bring about a similar condition of affairs in this country.

—Centre Hall was visited by a fire Monday morning about 2 o'clock. A stable belonging to Major Wolf was set on fire by unknown parties and the fire communicated to Mrs. Neff's stable, both buildings being consumed. The Lutheran church, a handsome brick structure, was also burned. A quantity of hay, 11 hogs and two cows in the stables were victims of the flames. There was $4,000 insurance on the church, the stables not being insured.

—George Whippo, the man who committed suicide on Friday, was the son of C. O. Whippo, and was born on the 15th of June 1851. His wife is the daughter of John and Catharine Smith. They were married on the 19th of June, 1879. Seven children were born to them, six of whom are living. They are, Nora May, aged 13; Frank, aged 10; A. Beatrice, aged 9; Lide Viola, aged 7; John L., aged 6; Mary Catharine, aged 4; and William Teller, a little more than one year old. Mrs. Whippo has the unreserved sympathy of all in this hour of her supreme affliction. The claims of charity and kindness recommend her and the fatherless little ones to the compassion of all.

The "Watchman's" Duplicity.
The Democratic Watchman, under the heading "A Republican Lie Nailed" in its issue of October 3, publishes the following:

A Republican Lie Nailed.
The Republican managers hereabouts who are so anxious to elect their candidates to the Legislature to vote for a Republican United States Senator, have been quietly circulating the report that if Mr. Woodward and Mr. Rhone were elected they would vote for a bill requiring stock of all kind to be kept in enclosures. The following correspondence on that subject fully and effectually nails that lie:

SPRING MILLS, Centre county, Pa., September 25, 1884.

John A. Woodward Esq.;

DEAR SIR—The report is being circulated throughout this section of the county that if elected Representative to our Legislature you will vote for a law requiring stock of all kind to be kept in enclosures—thus preventing poor people from pasturing their cattle on the mountains or unfenced lands of the county. We write to ascertain your intentions in this matter, and would be pleased to have your views on this subject plainly stated, and oblige,

Yours, very respt'y, &c.,
J. B. HECKMAN,
M. L. RISHEL,
I. J. GRENABLE,
HENRY KUMRINE.

HOWARD, Pa., Sept. 30, 1884.

Messrs. J. B. Heckman, L. M. Rishel, I. J. Grenoble, Henry Krumrine.

GENTLEMEN—The report referred to in your kind favor of the 25th inst. is untrue. Possibly its origin may be found in the fact that I advocate and practice, as a matter of farm economy, the abandonment of inside fences, and the herding of stock when at pasture on the farm.

I regard public office as a public trust, to be administered in the interest and in compliance with the wishes of those by whom the trust is committed; and if elected to the Legislature, I shall faithfully try to perform the duties attaching to the position in accord with this view.

In my judgment such legislation as that to which you allude would be in opposition to the interest and wishes of a large majority of the citizens of the county. I shall therefore if it be presented vote against it.

Thanking you for calling my attention to the matter,

I am very truly,
JNO. A. WOODWARD.

It is currently reported that both the Democratic candidates for the Legislature favor the enactment of a law compelling all persons to pen up their cattle, and thus deprive many a poor person from the free use of the fine pasture that our wild and uncultivated lands afford. But that the allegations that the Democratic candidate or candidates are committed in favor of such legislation was originated by Republican "managers hereabouts" is utterly untrue in fact. We have just received from a Democrat the following circular, which he says was prepared, published and circulated from the Watchman office. It is as follows:

JOHN A. WOODWARD.

HOW HE WOULD REPRESENT FARMERS AND LABORING MEN!

HIS RECORD ON A FEW MATTERS.

It is right when men solicit and seek the position of Law-Makers, that their views on subjects affecting the interests of the people should be known. On two questions of vital interest to Farmers and Workmen, Mr. Woodward has made a record by which he must stand. The first of these is, whether the farmers and workmen shall be allowed to pasture their stock upon the mountains and unfenced valley lands of this county or whether they shall be required to keep them housed the entire year.

A few years ago, a few men who have no interest in the welfare of the people generally, conceived the idea of Preventing Stock from Running at large within the county. The railroad companies, which in this county, are required to build fences along their lines or pay for the cattle they kill, backed up the movement. A petition was gotten up praying the Legislature to pass an Act preventing Cattle, Sheep or Swine from running at large, and imposing a heavy penalty on any one whose cow, sheep or hog, was found outside of their own enclosure. This was to save the railroad companies the expense of fencing their roads, or the cost of paying for the stock killed. The first name upon this petition, which is now on file in Harrisburg, is that of JOHN A. WOODWARD, of Howard. In addition to signing it, Mr. Woodward advocated it wherever he could, and carried it round soliciting the names of others to it. If Mr. Woodward goes to the Legislature, this is one of the Acts his record pledges him to pass.

The other is an act to MORTGAGE FARMS TO MAKE PUBLIC PIKES.

On the 12th of June last, there was a meeting of the State Board of Agriculture held at Lock Haven, and Mr. Woodward prepared and read a paper on "Country Roads; What they are and Why; What they should be and How."

In this paper Mr. Woodward advocated the McAdamsing of all public roads in the county, and to meet the expenses thereof, to enter liens or mortgages upon the real estate of the different townships. This is the way Mr. Woodward as a Law-Maker would have our roads made. Every Farm in the county would be plastered over with mortgages and the House of the laboring man would have a lien against it, in order that Mr. Woodward and others who drive fancy teams could have good roads for their own pleasure.

These are matters for Democratic voters to look squarely in the face now. If they think it policy to nominate as a Law-Maker a citizen who advocates these ideas, so be it; if not, they should send delegates to the County Convention pledged to vote against any man or men favoring such ideas.

We of course are not prepared to say whether the facts alleged in the circular are true or false. But as the circular was prepared in the Watchman office and sent out by it, and as the Watchman assumes to be the great apostle of truth, we presume the facts contained in it are true. The circular was sent out to defeat the nomination of one of their candidates for the nomination. If it was good ground to use to defeat a nomination it ought to be good ground to defeat an election. But when the Watchman originates and circulates charges against one of its own candidates it ought not to have the effrontery to charge it as being a Republican lie.

Cupid's Pranks at Pine Glenn.

The elegant residence of Mrs. Boak, at Pine Glenn, was the scene on Thursday, at the hour of high noon, 12:30 o'clock, of one of the most brilliant and elaborate nuptial events which Centre county has ever witnessed. At that time Mr. Theodore A. Boak, of Snow Shoe, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Libbie E. Yarnell, the adopted daughter of Mr. George Boak. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. M. Ash, of Salona, Clinton county, before a large number of relatives and acquaintances, including many from Bellefonte. The bridesmaids were Miss Jack, of Boalsburg, and Miss Annie Maitland, of Williamsport, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. Howard Lyon, of Muncy, Lycoming county, and Mr. Baker Bowman. The ushers were Mr. George Brew and Mr. Kyle McFarlane, both of this place.

Everything connected with the affair was of the most recherche and elegant description and the rejoicings were continued all the afternoon. Caterers from Bellefonte exerted their best efforts to prepare the choicest collation that skill can procure and succeeded admirably.

The presents were numerous and very costly. A fine piano from Mr. George Boak and an elegant hand-carved sewing machine are samples, all the others corresponding in value.

The wedding party came from Snow Shoe to this place in Supt. S. S. Blair's private car. Before entering the train at the Pine Glenn station they were serenaded by the Snow Shoe Cornet Band. At Bellefonte they took the 8:45 p. m. train for Washington City and other places of interest, expecting to be absent on their wedding journey about two weeks.

The happy and worthy couple have our most cordial congratulations and best wishes.

—A correspondent informs us that the late "Joseph Baker, Esq., was a native of Howard, this county, from whence he removed at the age of 30 to the neighborhood of Oak Hall, at which place he lived for 19 years engaged at his trade of carpenter and cabinet maker. He was one of the foremost in the cause of temperance from his early youth and in the Sabbath-school he was numbered among those whose heart was in the work. In 1857 he removed to his farm, three-fourths of a mile distant, where he lived to the time of his death. The Bible was the man of his counsel and his daily companion, and in his latter years it was his meat and drink, and nothing else could long take its place. He was an insatiable reader but nothing ever took his attention long from the Sacred Volume. The "Life of Christ" and the sermons of Moody, Spurgeon and Evans were among his favorite studies. Perfect through suffering, he ended this mortal life at the age of 76 years and 8 months, to rejoin his lamented companion, Sara Kobel Baker, and between them death nor the yawning grave shall ever come again."

—We do not think Bellefonte need complain of its representation on the county Democratic ticket. Out of eleven candidates Bellefonte has four, viz: Walker, Smith, Bible and McClain, while the rest of the county except the lower end has the balance. The lower end is where the large majorities come from, but we suppose the ring thought they could be whipped in with the party whip if they made any fuss about being alighted. We heard the remark after the nominations were made: "Oh, we will fix them up before election. They will be all right," &c. Gentlemen of the lower end, are you "fixed up?"

—The storms of Sunday were quite severe in many parts of the State.

FRIDAY'S SUICIDE.

How George Whippo Fired the Shot that Ended His Life.

The facts connected with the sad suicide of George Whippo, in Spangler & Co's furniture store, on Friday afternoon, are about as follows:

George Whippo had been working about the store occasionally and on Friday, between 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning, went to the small apartment at the rear of the store to arrange the bed which Mr. Spangler occupied the night before. In doing so he must have discovered the revolver lying beneath the pillow.

As noon the same day Mr. Spangler, the proprietor, stepped from the store to the opposite side of the street and engaged in a conversation with Mr. A. Sternberg and two other gentlemen. He did not see any one enter the store during his absence, although Mr. Whippo entered in some way. A few minutes after one o'clock, Mr. Spangler went into the store, walking through to the rear end. Looking in the side room, he saw Whippo lying on the edge of the bed, and a revolver in a pool of blood at his feet. His hat was placed between his knees and in it rested his left hand, as if he had taken his hat off before attempting the fatal act. The ball entered the head back of the right temple, going completely through, and then striking the woodwork at the side of the entrance. The bullet did instant execution and the unfortunate man had evidently fallen from a sitting posture to a reclining one as soon as the bullet was fired.

Dr. H. K. Hoy, coroner, summoned an inquest jury of six, of which John I. Rankin, Esq., was made foreman. Among the witnesses summoned was Mrs. Green, who lives in rooms overhead. She had heard the report of the revolver, but did not attach any importance to it. Miss Christina Cedars, who was engaged in some duty in the hall under the room, saw blood dropping through from the apartment above and to make sure it was actually blood let some drop on a shingle. She then became much frightened, believing some one had a hemorrhage and was dying. She was just about to give the alarm when the fact of the shooting became known by Mr. Spangler's discovery. Mr. Spangler testified to what he knew of it, and Mrs. Whippo testified that she had never known her husband to even hint at such an act as suicide.

The inquest jury found that he came to his death by means of a revolver held in his own hands, and the jury furthermore believe that the revolver was fired with suicidal intent.

Deceased leaves a wife and six children. The body was taken to his home on Howard street. The relatives of both Mr. and Mrs. Whippo are people of the most estimable character and the act is looked upon by them as horrifying and startling in the extreme.

It is not true, as reported on Friday, that Mr. R. Spangler was in the store at the time of the tragedy, or that the report of the firing was heard by several persons.

The funeral of deceased took place at his late residence on Howard St., at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury.

Following is a copy of the verdict rendered by the coroner's jury summoned on Friday to inquire into the cause of the death of George Whippo: STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA, } SS. COUNTY OF CENTRE.

An inquisition taken at Bellefonte borough, county aforesaid, the 10th day of October, A. D. 1884, before H. K. Hoy, M. D., coroner of the county of Centre, upon the view of the body of George Whippo, then and there lying dead, and upon the oaths and affirmations respectively of John I. Rankin, C. G. McMillen, Thomas J. Dunkle, Cyrus Strickland, Wm. McClellan and Samuel D. Ryan, six good and lawful men aforesaid, charged to inquire when, how and by what means the said George Whippo came to his death, do upon their solemn oaths and affirmations respectively say, that it appears from the evidence before us that George Whippo's death was caused by a shot from a pistol in his own hands, and that the coroner and jury do further believe that the said George Whippo fired the shot from the pistol with a suicidal intent.

H. K. Hoy, Coroner,
JNO. I. RANKIN, Foreman,
T. J. DUNKLE,
C. G. McMILLEN,
WM. MCCLELLAN,

—Hon. James P. Coburn paid an agreeable visit to his friends in Bellefonte on Thursday afternoon, the 9th. He is a gentleman of extensive experience in political affairs, decided convictions and great fluency and ability in expressing them.

A Meeting in Georges Valley.

POTTER TOWNSHIP, Oct. 6 '84.

MR. EDITOR: I attended a Democratic meeting in Georges Valley last Saturday, and want to tell you frankly what I—a Democrat, along with many others—think of it. It was the most transparent thing I ever witnessed or listened to.

The citizens wanted a Dutch speech, but as C. M. Bower, Esq., is not skilled in that language, Hon. Leonard Rhone made the address. I think I never heard so feeble an effort put forth. It seemed to me the "Mussler letter," in which Rhone said, "I am as good a Republican as ever," etc., stared him in the face all the time. He could not acquit himself as he is accustomed to at Granger meetings; and I know from the expressions of a host of good Democrats who were present—and when I say host, I mean a small host, as there were only a few there, including both parties—that Rhone "cooked his goose well." I heard on all sides such sayings as these: "Too thin," "Can't shut my eye," "Thin speech," "Too transparent," "Too inconsistent," "Won't be gobbled by a speech like that," &c., &c., &c.

Leonard Rhone had better—even now—get out of the way. We have had time to reflect and consider the matter since the nomination and all have concluded to vote for a good Democrat, or a good Republican—one who is not a "flop" and pretender. We all know Rhone is a Republican; but being anxious for office and knowing the Republican party cannot give it to him, he slides over to our side. It will not do, Leonard; we intend to support Wm. Allison who is a Republican and a man who would not leave his party for office.

Allison would not pretend he is a Democrat, we are sure; and if he said he was a Democrat we would believe him, as he could not be capable of trying to deceive us by saying he was a Democrat and writing to his Republican friend, "I am as good a Republican as ever." He is too much of a man for that. A DEMOCRAT.

—On Friday, at 4 o'clock, a Blaine and Logan pole sixty feet high was raised by the Republicans of Julian Furnace and a beautiful flag elevated upon it. In the evening a meeting was held in the school house at that place which was filled with the citizens of the vicinity and the occasion was rendered specially enjoyable by the presence of twenty-five or thirty ladies. In the absence of Mr. W. R. Mattern, the member of the Republican county committee from Huston township, Mr. Ira Davis called the meeting to order and an organization was effected by electing Geo. W. Miles president and L. C. Bullock secretary. Addresses of a very entertaining character were made by S. D. Ray and J. G. Love, Esqs., Mr. Ray's address occupying about half an hour and Mr. Love speaking with his usual eloquence until it was time for the meeting to adjourn. Both speakers were loudly applauded. After the meeting the speakers, joined by a few friends, partook of an elegant supper at Chandler's hotel.

—On Wednesday, October 8, at 6 o'clock p. m., a wedding ceremony to which much interest attaches and was the occasion of great rejoicing, occurred at Eagleville, this county. The contracting parties were Miss Ella DeLong, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James I. DeLong, of Eagleville, and Mr. John Wagner, a well known and popular young gentleman of Milesburg. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. W. A. Ridge, before a few of the immediate relatives and friends. Of course, the usual congratulations followed and were never more heartily given. The supper was of a sumptuous description. Numerous beautiful and costly presents were received, among which an elegant gold watch and chain—a gift to the bride—was conspicuous. The happy couple departed on the evening train for a wedding journey to Harrisburg and other places. Mr. Wagner, the groom, is a son of the prosperous miller in Milesburg, and is himself a young gentleman of ability and energy. The beautiful bride is the daughter of the popular hotelier in Eagleville and is esteemed in social circles. We wish them much joy in their new and endearing relation.

—Messrs. Lavery, Lyon, Boah and Pearlstein took part in the barrel race last Thursday evening and furnished much fun to the spectators. Mr. Lavery skated the half mile most rapidly, going through the barrels quite skillfully. Ed. Garman, John I. Rankin, Esq., and Cooper Dare were the judges. The bestowal of the prizes also occasioned laughter as they consisted of such articles as doll babies, doll wagons, etc.

Personal Penicillings.

Miss Kitty Mussler, of Hartleton, Union Co., is visiting friends in this place.

Gen. James A. Beaver returned from his western tour on Thursday evening.

Mr. Kitzmiller returned on Monday of last week from his trip to Philadelphia.

Mr. James Milliken departed for New York City on the 10 a. m. train on Thursday.

Miss Jennie Weaver, daughter of Mr. George Weaver, of this place, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. H. Crissman, of Philipsburg.

Mrs. Dr. Larimer and Mrs. Curtin, of Bellefonte, were guests on Wednesday at the residence of Joseph Candon, in Lock Haven, says the Democrat of that city.

Mr. J. C. Henderson, one of the Republican candidates for Commissioner, spent a few hours in Bellefonte on Thursday afternoon. Mr. H. deserves every Republican vote, and as every thing we have heard in reference to him has been unqualified praise we predict his election.

Rev. J. A. Woodcock and his family have located in the beautiful and comfortable brick residence on Howard street, next to the Methodist church. Owing to ill health he has temporarily given up his ministerial labors and accepted the agency of the Union Central Life Ins. Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio. We hope that his residence in Bellefonte will be profitable physically as we are sure it will be pleasant socially.

Mr. H. G. Royer, of Wolf's Store, the gentleman who will succeed Mr. Dunkle as sheriff of Centre county, was in town on Thursday. Mr. Royer is a popular and very pleasant gentleman, and is admirably well qualified for the office which he has been called upon by his fellow-citizens to fill. He will receive nearly all the votes at his home and Bellefonte as well as other parts of the county will testify to his worth by a large vote in his favor.

The Wedding at Pine Glenn.

A correspondent who attended the wedding of Theodore Boak and Libbie E. Yarnell, at Pine Glenn on Thursday, writes as follows:

The bride was dressed in cream Ottoman silk, trimmed in real lace and velvet ornaments, neck cut square with wreath of orange blossoms. Miss Anna Maitland, of Williamsport, first bridesmaid, dressed in cream satin and trimmed with brocade silk; Miss Suzie Jack, of Boalsburg, second bridesmaid, dressed in white silk trimmed with satin and plush.

Baker S. Bowman, of Muncy, first groomsmen; J. K. McFarlane, second groomsmen. George T. Brew and William Stewart, Jr., served as ushers, all in full dress.

Rev. H. M. Ash performed the ceremony, and among the many valuable and handsome presents received were a handsome upright piano from the father of the bride, a set of diamond earrings from the groom; elegant china set from J. K. Boak and wife; bronzed clock from Cameron Boak and wife; handsome oil painting from Anna Maitland; panel bronze statue, Dr. Parks of Downingtown; check of $50 from R. H. Downing of Philadelphia; handsome full dinner set from S. S. Fox and wife of Philadelphia; beautiful oil painting, from Miss Suzie Jack.

There were about 100 guests present, and before the happy couple left Snow Shoe John G. Uzzle and the brass band turned out one hundred strong, giving them a serenade.

Officers Elected.

The annual business meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association held at the rooms Friday night was well attended. The following officers were elected to serve for one year: President, W. S. Zeller; Vice President, Prof. D. M. Lieb; Recording Secretary, J. C. Weaver; Treasurer, George L. Potter. The following were elected as the Board of Directors: General James A. Beaver, A. S. Valentine, Dr. J. W. Rhone, Col. D. S. Keller, F. Potts Green, W. I. Fleming, E. F. Garman and John Olewine. It was decided to hold the Anniversary meeting on Sunday evening, November 10th, and Prof. Lieb, J. C. Weaver and C. U. Hoffer were appointed a committee to make the necessary arrangements.
